ILLINOIS STATE UNIVERSITY

NORMAL, ILLINOIS

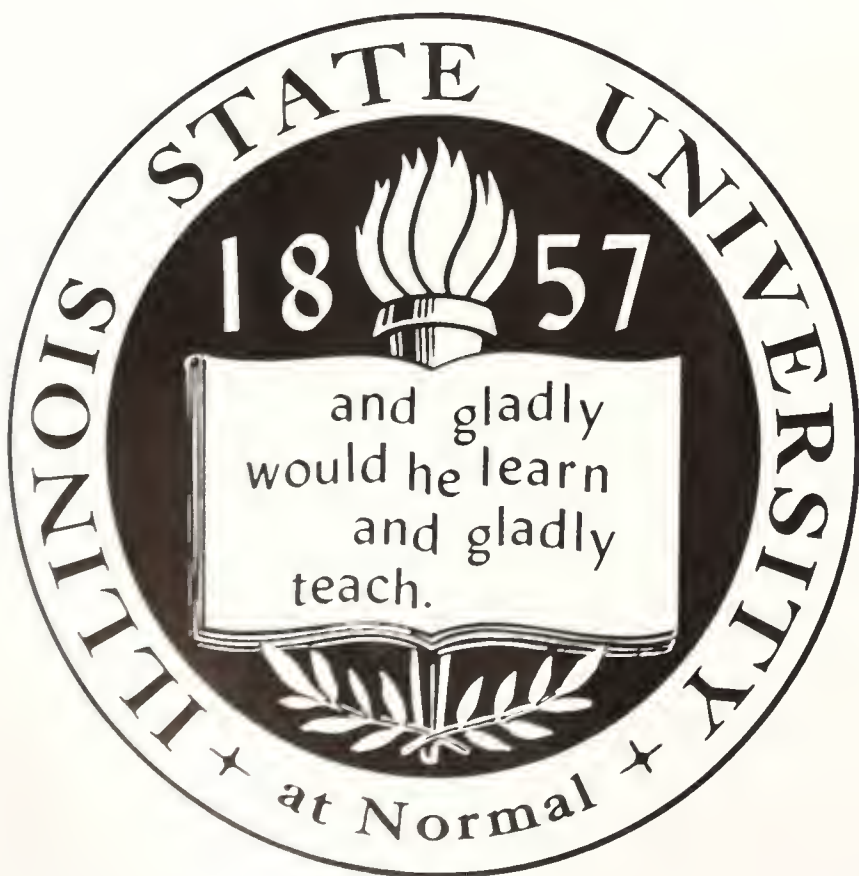

VOLUME 74 1964

President Bone and Mr. Harden watch Governor Kerner sign the ISU name change into law on August 23, 1963.

January 1, 1964 . . . a date to remember. That is the day that Illinois State Normal University, a name that had existed for 107 years, became Illinois State University at Normal. This change did not actually occur overnight, as some would have us think. It took several years of concentrated effort and planning on the part of many. As the old name saw many problems, so did the new. Signs and stationery had to be changed, as well as the terminology of most people.

Changing signs, both on and off campus, was a consequence of the name change.

Showing that the "Normal" was on its way out of existence, the Marching Band made the "N" smaller at each successive game.

Proclamation

I hereby declare Monday, November 25, 1963 to be a Day of Mourning at Illinois State Normal University. No classes or functions will be held on that day, with the exception of Memorial Services which will be conducted in the Clifford E. Horton Field House at 9:00 A.M.

Today, students, faculty and staff will gather around the flag-pole in the central quadrangle at 4:30 P.M. for silent meditation and prayer which will be concluded by a flag ceremony and taps. For the remainder of the month, the affairs of the University will be conducted in an atmosphere of dignity and solemnity in keeping with our great national loss--the tragic and untimely death of our President, John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal to be affixed.

Robert G. Bone

Robert G. Bone
President,
Illinois State Normal University

The gloom of the flag at half-mast and the rain . . .

Thousands attended the Memorial Service at Horton.

President Kennedy? Oh, no!
The world was shocked; so was the campus.
On Friday, classes continued, but the student body had changed in the few hours since they had heard, had known.

Red eyes . . .

Somber expressions . . .

On Sunday, meditation and taps at the flagpole in the quadrangle seemed a fitting remembrance of a President.

On Monday, thousands quietly assembled at Horton Fieldhouse for the Memorial Service and churches were filled to overflowing.

Much thinking and weeping . . .

. . . set many to thinking of the tragic events.

In his famous red vest, President Bone and his wife ride in the Homecoming parade in an open carriage, characteristic of "A Century of Change."

Just before the weekend, sleepless nights were in order to protect elaborate decorations.

Guarding the wood from Wesleyan . . .

Homecoming is more than remembering the past, or looking forward to the future.

The keynote to this season is working together, cooperation.

Guarding the bonfire wood from Wesleyan . . .

Stuffing paper carnations into wire frames . . .

Cheering the team on to victory . . .

Trying to get a float together for the parade . . .

Once the preparations were finished, and the last carnation in place, everyone relaxed and enjoyed the fruit of his labors together.

Lifting the basket at Dunn-Barton for the high flying balloon decoration, but working together . . .

Mixing up some papier-mâché . . .

Grinning from ear to ear, these students have a good laugh—"It's this thing about a ping-pong ball . . ."

Expressions . . .
 the outward reflection of inner feeling.
 What do we express in our faces?
 Emotions and moods such as
 Like and dislike . . .
 Happiness and unhappiness . . .
 Concentration and frustration . . .
 We cannot hide our faces, thus,
 on campus, we register our opinions
 by our facial expressions.

This art student thinks she caught the camera spying on her and her companions.

Deep and serious thought is a part of academic life.

"Hey! This is cold water!"

Art class is as good a time as any to decide which is the stronger sex.

Synonymous with school spirit at any school are the cheerleaders. Ours are no exception.

"A mighty blow on this will pep things up."

Jump to the sky for victory!

Ready and willing to fight at any signal, and cheering the team on . . .

The undefinable unknown: pep.
 School spirit
 is going all out to support the Redbirds, even when they're losing . . .
 It is bringing loud, lusty voices to the game and practicing sportsmanship to prove that enthusiasm reigns supreme.
 It is saying and believing that ISU is the best.
 Even though it may have its drawbacks, we know anything can be changed with support and spirit.

Piccolo or sousaphone, it's the spirit that helps make music an important part of pep.

Like peaks of meringue, the snow piled outside of Edwards Hall after the January blizzard.

The order of the day in any season: rain.

Walking to or from Centennial proved to be a problem for these young coeds.

A beautiful summer day just made for a talk.

The weather in Normal is varied and unusual. Fall brings Indian Summer, wind, and the students back to campus. Winter brings blizzards, wind, and Thanksgiving, Christmas . . . and exams. Spring brings rain, wind, and sun worshippers to South Campus . . . and exams. Summer brings scorching heat, wind, and the concentrated efforts of summer students. Thus the seasons repeat themselves.

Walking in the wind: a "Normal" day.

Summer school students viewed the eclipse by the indirect method of the box.

The magic begins . . .

Diane Roleau and Jay McCormick leave Fell Hall for an evening together.

And then for a moonlit walk around campus.

As the sun descends in the west and the charm of the evening ascends, students begin to leave their dorms and homes in pairs.
The magic begins when he arrives to pick her up.
The date may take them to the Cage, a Capen movie, a game,
an occasional quiet walk,
or, perhaps, out on the town.
The night is climaxed with a good-night kiss and all thoughts are turned toward the future.

Over cokes at the Cage, the conversation may concern anything.

The perfect ending for a perfect evening . . .

Twisting at the Dunn-Barton walk-in . . .

Solitary study in a classroom . . .

A common denominator that joins all students—Studying.

Whenever they get together,
the conversation turns to that subject:
How you fell asleep over the books last night,
or that teacher who thinks that his course is the only one you're carrying.

You find many places to study . . .

Your room, the lounge, the library,
the third floor of the Union, Schroeder.

But, after four years of complaining, study is probably the major reason why you graduate.

Study often takes forms other than the stereotyped books and pens, as this art student proves.

The main competitor to studying is sleep.

A beautiful day for studying . . .

Every evening the reference room in Milner becomes a favorite place for studying and reading.

To many, the Cage is merely a meeting and eating place, but intellectual stimulation is often in order.

Discussion—serious discussion— and decisions which may shape your future ambitions.

The clash of the cymbal or a smooth dance . . .

Entertaining students outside the Cage . . .

“All work and no play . . .”
 You know how the saying goes;
 and the students at ISU do not spend all their time studying.
 There are always bull sessions and hen parties .
 Study breaks at the Cage . . .
 Walk-ins, dances, and record hops . . .
 A long talk in the lounge . . .
 Or a quiet walk in the evening.
 College life involves knowing and being with people—and we find it a form of education.

Precision, accuracy, and aim—but relaxing and fun.

Snowbound, the bell of Old Main reminds us of days past.

A very unfamiliar view of old North Hall . . .

Being used for the first time this year, Turner Hall, the practical arts building, is an example of modern architecture.

With Walker Hall in the foreground and Milner Library in the back, the setting sun illuminates part of the campus.

We often speak of how crowded a building is or how old another one is. Occasionally we mention that the expansion of one building will greatly increase opportunities for education. While facilities are important, more important still is the willingness of students to seek out an education. Learning will take place if the students wish it.

The dome off Old Main becomes a space capsule.

Running through the center of campus . . .

We have been speaking in generalities . . .
 what you can find on campus
 at any time.
 But what happened this year?
 What makes 1963-1964 memorable?
 Of course, there was the name change,
 and buildings being used for the first time.
 There were new freshmen just beginning and wise seniors attaining bachelor degrees.
 Things were completed, things accomplished.
 This year was important . . . let's reminisce.

Expansion and change were the watchwords for the year as buildings filled the once empty area of West Campus.

HOMECOMING COURT

Reigns Entire Week

Speeches, appearances, pictures, dinners, dances, luncheons—all of these went into making the week before Homecoming an unforgettable one for Queen Linda Moore and her court. These five lucky coeds were the first to reign for an entire week, adding more to the excitement and whirl of Homecoming. During the week preceding the "big weekend," the five travelled from dorm to dorm to eat dinner with the directors and members of the Homecoming Board. The court was especially impressed when the girls eating at Feeney stood up and sang the school song when they entered. News coverage was increased as bulbs and smiles flashed, and interviews and speeches were given. Finally the Homecoming weekend arrived. Of course, the traditional events took place, but these took on new meaning for the girls that were so directly involved in them. Riding in the parade with mink stoles draped about their shoulders was but one of the many happy events that marked their reign.

HOMECOMING

A Century of Change

The cheerleaders assemble to kick off the festivities.

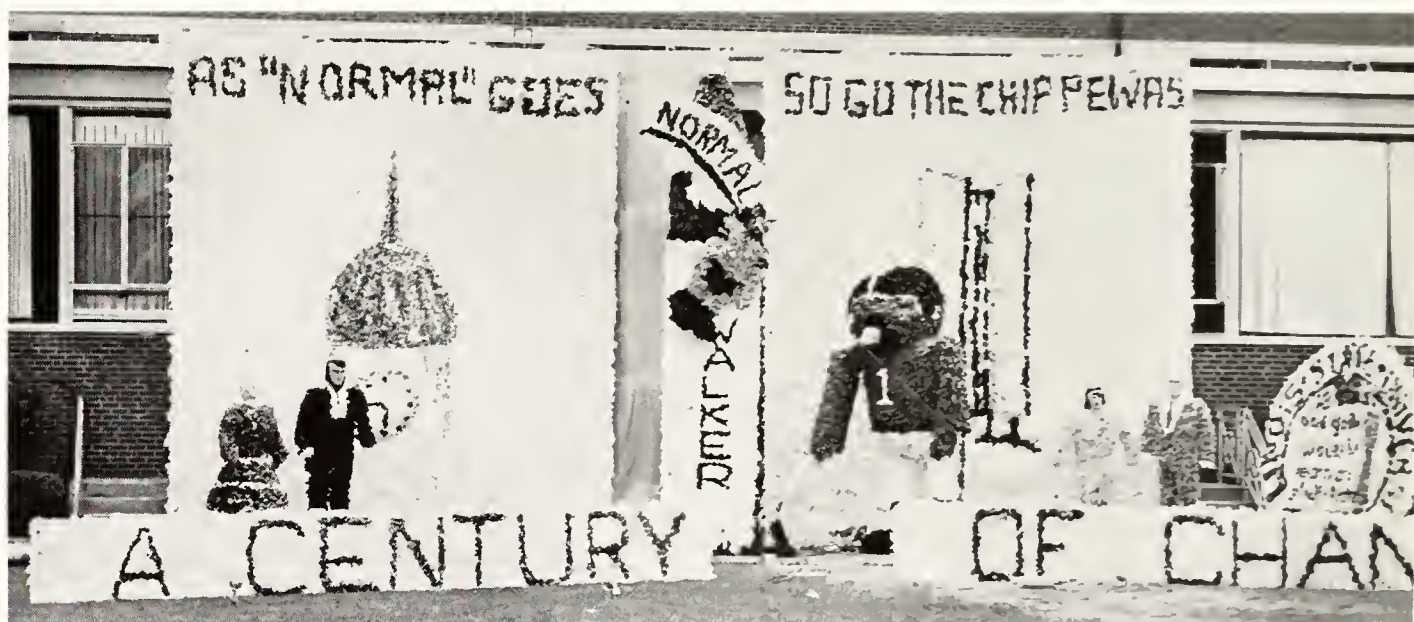

The fireworks—ah, the fireworks—the skies were ablaze with beauty.

President Bone tends bar and tempers in the prize winning Dew Drop Inn card game.

Walker Hall captured the spirit of the Homecoming theme in their first prize decoration.

Silhouetted by the bonfire, a cheerleader claps out the pep beat.

The word "homecoming" connotes a spirit of tradition, that feeling of unity between the past and present. Although ISU's 1963 Homecoming indeed contained a sense of tradition, it was overshadowed by the mobile spirit of transition and change.

Probably the greatest change during the festivities was the cloudless, clear sky that prevailed above the snake dance, bonfire, fireworks display, pep rally, parade, and football game. For the first time in five years a queen reigned in brilliant sunshine instead of the traditional cloudy skies and dampening showers.

The good times in which all participated during the memorable weekend were not always present on the campus of Illinois State; in fact, the first festivities were not witnessed until November 4 and 5, 1921. The trend was initiated at that time by President Felmley to help dispel the "popular feeling that the Normal School was not progressing." The activities of Homecoming have grown since 1921 from a simple Jester play, waffle breakfast, and hobo parade to a varied series of weekend activities that stimulate the entire campus and surrounding community to frenzied heights of activity.

The "A Century of Change" theme of Homecoming in observance of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Alumni Association in June, 1863, was revealed through various house decorations, such as the prize-winning tribute to the new emblem of ISU with "Normal" omitted. By leading the traditional parade in a horse-drawn buggy, Dr. Bone added his contribution to the theme of change and progress.

In essence, Homecoming is time for fun and laughter, and eager anticipation of victory for the home team. Additional spirit was placed behind the 1963 football players with the record-breaking crowd present for the first Homecoming game on Hancock field. The blue sky cover, fresh green grass, impressive red-plumed band ensemble, and red and white football jerseys contrasting with the yellow and purple Central Michigan uniforms painted a vivid spectacle for all present. Climaxing the weekend, "A Century of Change" was experienced by couples as they walked from the 1863 decorations of McCormick Gym, across the starlit lawn, to the 1963 silhouettes of dress, communication, and transportation as they were displayed in the University Union Ballroom.

As the unforgettable spirit of the weekend returned to its reminiscent form for another year, students realized that the 1963 festivities could never be exactly reproduced; however, that spirit of tradition, one which affects each and every student, will return year after year at Homecoming time to Illinois State University.

In the heartbreaking Homecoming game, Redbird Ed Thomas attempts a rush against a lonely Chippewa as the record-breaking crowd watches.

From the lips of an APO came humor.

The APO Review presented a display of talent for a worthy cause.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Service and Talent

Water balloons, squirt guns, and laughter typified the antics of the traffic-directing APO clowns during the Homecoming parade. Whenever the University has the need for help, Alpha Phi Omega is always ready to lend a helping hand. The work of the service fraternity semi-annually converts the usually music filled University Ballroom into a blood donation center. APO aid was also granted to the crippled children at Lake Bloomington through the proceeds of the annual APO Review. Alpha Phi Omega was also of help when fliers had to be delivered to the dormitories for circulation among men and women students.

BIG FOUR

Big Name Bands

The Big Four Committee undertakes a sizable job when they plan a year of four big name bands. Not only must they consider various musical tastes, but also they must be prepared to carry out every phase of their plans. The presentation of Si Zentner, Count Basie, and Duke Ellington pleased the jazz enthusiasts as well as the rest of the dancers. Carrying out a precedent set last year, the committee continued the special concert for season ticket holders. From the romantic harvest moon to the cool spring mists, the music of the various bands blended with swishing skirts, bubbling laughter, and tapping toes to add a light touch of music and dancing to the excitement of a year on campus.

The wicked witch captured these children in "Hansel and Gretel."

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Never Ending Play

The art is old, but the actors and participants are ever new, ever changing. Each generation gives its knowledge of the stage to each succeeding generation, who contribute what they can and pass their gift on to the next. The University Theatre shares in this learning and teaching, in this passing and receiving. This is the stage for the never ending play at ISU. Under the direction of the five theatre staff members Miss Dorothy Dodd, Miss Agnes Lattak, Mr. Bernard Skalka, Mr. Harry Stiver, and Mr. Robert Whitlatch, the timeless art of the theatre renewed itself this year in "Italian Straw Hat," "Twelfth Night," "Hansel and Gretel," and eight student-directed experimental plays.

JESTERS

Ageless Media

Lights out! Curtain up! The show is on . . . To the audience the drama is just beginning, but to the members of Jesters, it's the beginning of an end. All that goes into displaying the club's aims of promoting an interest in University Theatre, encouraging individual participation, and developing skills in the theatrical arts is past. The fruit of this year's labors was "Rashomon," an all student-directed play following a precedent established by the club. But there were other activities too, such as the trip to Chicago to see professional stagecraft. Thus work and play combined together to give the Jesters an opportunity to develop and participate in this ageless media of communication.

The Madrigal Dinners brought forth songs and meals in the true sixteenth century style.

The Christmas Spirit Once Again

With the hush of gently falling snow, the ISU campus settled into the Christmas season. The traditional tree-lighting ceremony brought forth the familiar Christmas carols from their hiding places in our memories. Once again we were reminded of the birth of the Christ Child so many years ago when most things were different than they are today. Again and again, the past is brought to the present with the advent of the Christmas season. Each year we are presented with the familiar when the music organizations perform the classic Messiah and Madrigal Dinners, and the dances begin their whirl. Each presentation is different from the year before, and yet, the aura of familiarity gently weaves its spell as the snow slowly falls to the ground.

Well-bundled against the cold, the chorus and President Bone usher in the Christmas season.

Each evening as night fell, the nativity scene and Christmas tree stood side by side radiating the light of Christmas.

Christmas means snow and snow means fun . . .

The versatile Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians presented music from folk to religious interspersed with lively comedy.

ENTERTAINMENT BOARD

Form of Education

From the fabulous rhythms of Peter, Paul, and Mary to the individualism of "Brecht on Brecht," the Entertainment Board presented a series of the interesting and informing in entertainment. Music was the order of the day as Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians appeared on campus a few weeks after the rescheduled Gateway Trio. Under the auspices of the Board, the Fine Arts Theatre continued to present the unusual and appealing in film productions with The Three Faces of Eve and View from the Bridge. As the hundreds from town and campus flocked to hear and see these big names in entertainment, another form of education took place through this mass media.

Peter, Paul, and Mary captivated the audience at Horton.

ORCHESIS

Product of Rhythm

Rhythm is an important part of everyone's life, but it is especially important to Orchesis members. Their year is centered around dancing, a product of rhythm. In October, the group performed in the dance minors concert. These dances were choreographed by junior and senior dance minors. While preparing for their own concert in April, members travelled to the Iowa Dance Symposium at the University of Iowa. There they presented two dances which would later appear in their own production. The culmination of the year was the Orchesis Concert, which consisted of many modern dance routines. From humorous to religious, it contained all the elements of rhythm.

LOWELL MASON--MENC

Demands for Talent and Work

Pledge activities and construction of a Homecoming float started a year of activity for members of Lowell Mason. In December these students, who are music majors or minors, were off on a trip to the Chicago Music Convention and, later in the year, attended a Chicago Symphony Orchestra Concert. The March production of Flower Drum Song, a light musical comedy set in modern San Francisco's Chinatown, demanded talent and work from the Lowell Masons. Originality in set designing, staging, and dancing and excellence in musical numbers were a part of this sparkling presentation. Guest speakers at regular meetings included an expert on oriental music who demonstrated the use of forty different Japanese instruments.

Flower Drum Song told the story of Chinese in America.

Ballons and more balloons are typical of a carnival.

AWS CARNIVAL

Variety of Booths

Students, faculty, and Bloomington-Normal residents had "more fun than a barrel of monkeys" when they attended the annual Association of Women Students Carnival. McCormick Gymnasium was transformed into a maze of colorful booths, each with its individual charm to lure the hesitant on-lookers. These Carnival booths, sponsored by campus organizations, offered a wide variety of delightful and daring stunts. Excited talking and occasional bursts of laughter produced an undertone of gaiety. All this fun had as its goal community service, for Carnival profits were donated to the Normal Baby Fold. Three hundred dollars was received by this important charity from the sponsoring organization, AWS Central Board.

Atkin-Colby made legs the object for the ring toss.

Throwing darts at a spinning wheel was just one booth.

The unicyclists offer fascination and excitement for both spectators and participants alike.

GAMMA PHI

The Thrills of the College Circus

Precision is the watchword for these gymnasts.

Patti Gartner, Gamma Phi Queen, is escorted by Bill Hunt.

When the thrills and excitement of the circus come to ISU, everyone knows that Gamma Phi is presenting their cumulative talents for the final judgment of the spectators. Much enthusiastic and back-breaking practice and planning took place before the show was completed. Even though most of the members had never had any circus or gymnastic experience before working with Gamma Phi, the group radiated an aura of professionalism. This atmosphere permeated Horton Fieldhouse as the various acts began their run. All at once there was excitement on the floor as clowns danced out their antics, and unicyclists wove in and out of the apparatus and mats spread on the ground. The earth and sky were full of people as the trampolines began to bounce and the rings began to swing. Surely, nothing is more fascinating than a circus.

BLACKFRIARS

Gift of Abilities

We all know what a Blackfriar is, but do we really? Immediately one thinks of a slapstick brand of comedy, but few people realize that within each Blackfriar lies the gift of talent. Candidates must show a great deal of talent before they are even allowed to pledge. The four weeks of pledging test their ability to the fullest as the pledge class presents shows for their future brothers. The culmination of the year's work is the presentation of the annual Blackfriar show, an example of talent displayed in a satirical setting.

VARUNAS Synchronization

Devoting an entire year's work to the presentation of the annual swim show, Varunas chose the general theme of "Japan" for this year's production. The official opening of McCormick pool on March 14, brought Beulah Gundling, a well-known figure in the field of synchronized swimming, to the campus of ISU. Varunas hosted this meeting, a seminar, with many other schools in attendance. The various schools combined their talents and routines to present a very beautiful example of synchronized swimming.

The ballet leg is an important part of any swim routine, for it lends beauty and grace.

Capturing second place, Walker and Fell Halls presented a clever Mother Goose sequence.

May Brought Stunt Show and Cotillion

"We want clubhouse", reverberated throughout Capen when Atkin-Colby placed first in the annual Stunt Show.

Hamilton-Whitten, under the auspices of Bobby Bone, planned an attack on the dorms to capture all the men and devour the women.

On Mother's Day weekend each year, the campus jumps into activity, and 1963 was no exception. For weeks and weeks, the various dorms secretly planned and rehearsed skits to be presented at the highly competitive annual Stunt Show. The sophomore class was busy in preparing to present the Sophomore Cotillion. The week before Mother's Day everything went into action, as this was the time set aside at ISNU to especially honor mothers. As the sun shone, beautiful red and yellow tulips burst into bloom to contribute their share to the festivities. Entire families sat in Capen Auditorium as Atkin-Colby and Walker-Fell placed first and second, respectively, in the Stunt Show. Mothers and fathers danced with their sons and daughters at the Cotillion. Teas and receptions for the guests took place all over campus. The weekend was a success, and the campus returned to normality. Nothing remained but memories, very fond memories.

Music... From the Core of Our Being

Music is a feeling, an awareness, an instinct which all of us experience in varying amounts of intensity. It is in the core of our being; we cannot ignore it any more than we can ignore the rhythm of our heartbeat and respiration. Why is it that an insistent rhythm or an accelerating tempo can move us to a high degree of agitation as we sit inert in a concert hall? Why do we find ourselves walking in time with the throbbing bass drum of a distant marching band? Who can explain the emotion-arousing power in a final "Amen" reverberating from the interior of a cathedral? Music stands our nerves on end and sways them in sympathy with its intricate stimuli—melodies, consonances, dissonances, tempos, complex rhythms. It is at once the most primitive and most advanced of human tendencies. The savage with his chants and drum-beats feels and enjoys the power of music no less than the latest experimenter in hi-fi or stereo.

In college we are presented with many opportunities for developing and refining our native feeling for music. Available for our participation or our listening enjoyment are two kinds of musical organizations: vocal groups and instrumental groups.

Among the vocal groups is the University Choir, composed of the finest singers, both men and women, that the school has to offer. In addition to their inspiring spring and fall concerts, the Choir sang appropriate selections at the memorial service held for the late President Kennedy in Horton Fieldhouse. In December the group participated in the University's presentation of Handel's The Messiah, and in the spring they went on tour, leaving memories in the towns of Alton, Edwardsville, East St. Louis, Jerseyville, and Vandalia.

The Men's Glee Club is a growing organization open to all men on campus. Their spirit was unmistakable at each concert throughout the year. Women living in dormitories were very appreciative of the Glee Club's outdoor serenades in the fall and in the spring. Equally appreciative were concert audiences in Streator, Mendota, Plano, Dwight, and Gibson City, where the men journeyed on their spring tour.

Exclusively for women singers are the Treble Choir and the Women's Chorus. The Treble Choir, which is smaller and more selective, warmed the hearts of cold spectators at the University Union's Christmas tree lighting ceremony and was among the musical organizations participating in The Messiah. The Treble Choir and Women's Chorus presented both individual and joint concerts, singing a variety of selections. During April the two groups toured to Springfield, Morrisonville, Trenton, and Hillsboro.

Of the instrumental organizations, the first to make its appearance this year was the University Marching Band. At the opening football game a round of applause greeted the band as it marched onto the field sporting flashy new uniforms. Besides performing at every home football game, the band led our Homecoming Parade through the streets of Normal and performed in a half-time show at Bradley University.

The Concert Band and Varsity Band turned in stunning performances at both their joint concert in February and their individual concerts in May. In addition, the Concert Band on its tour played for audiences in Gibson City, Paxton, Cerro Gordo, Maroa, and Clinton. The Varsity Band took no extended tour but performed evening concerts in nearby communities.

Playing music in the big band and jazz idioms was the highly selective Stage Band. In addition to evening concerts at several high schools, the group provided the background music for this year's Gamma Phi Circus.

A brilliant concert in the spring ended the season for this outstanding organization.

The University Symphony Orchestra presented three memorable concerts, featuring soloists Dushan Vojnovich, Alvin Hedstrom, and Rita Sauerbier; and participated in the presentation of The Messiah. In the spring the Orchestra toured in southwestern Illinois.

Clearly there has been no lack of opportunities for musical growth and enrichment for everyone here at Illinois State. As we end another year, the extent to which we have developed our musical tastes is proportional to the amount that we have listened to or participated in these organizations.

GRADUATION

Joys and Sorrows

Graduation brings many joys and many sorrows. There is an exaltation in the thought that one chapter in life has been completed and another is about to open its pages. You cannot help but be proud when you walk with your class, the friends with whom you have worked, laughed, and cried, and accept the symbol of your labors, a degree. But there is sadness in leaving a life with which you are familiar and in thinking that you will probably never again walk these ways nor enter these buildings as a student at this institution. Regardless of thoughts of the present, there are, of course, the longings and reservations for the future. What lies ahead, and what satisfactions and rewards will be received? Whatever the answer, the graduate feels ready to tackle the unknown.

Mickey Schwartz served as editor of the 1964 Index, while Rich Russell fulfilled the position of business manager.

For Remembering

Take typewriters, grease pencils, proportion wheels, and rulers; add reams of paper, long tables, and office chairs; stir together with a cup full of ideas; result: an Index. If only it were that easy! Before the 1963 yearbook was distributed, the 1964 Editor was beginning to plan her contribution to the file of Indexes. Early in the fall, the various editors met to discuss the book and review their responsibilities. Now the real work was to begin. There were hundreds of pictures to be taken, developed, and printed . . . and only one tenth of these were to be used. There were lines of copy to be written, but before this could be done, there had to be interviews with the persons involved. Once each of these was begun, each page was laid out individually. Throughout all of this, the business staff had to handle such things as filing, indexing, and typing up the pages as they were completed. A constant record had to be kept of the current financial status of the yearbook. After trips to the engraver and printer, the pages were proofread and then bound into the finished product. The big day had finally arrived—a big day for students and staff alike. The Index was ready to be distributed. In bound form were all the memories and reminders of a year of work and fun at ISU.

The business staff of Pat Bonson, Joyce Stevenson, Maureen Brady, Betty Gilchrist, Linda Moore, Veronica Scheck, and Art Bonds . . . Under the assistant business manager, Cathy Russell, this group did picture filing, the indexing of all names, and typing.

Layout editor, Nancy Strayer, and staff: Jan Apland, Toni Galinausky, Barb Muirhead, Mary Grove, and Chris Hodge . . .

Mr. Russell Steele, our co-adviser, is also photography consultant.

New to the advisory staff of the Index was Mr. Scott Eatherly, our co-adviser.

Georgana Watkins was assistant editor.

Sports editor, Ron Miazga, wrote all sports copy.

VIDETTE

Campus Coverage

Rarely can a visitor to the third floor of the University Union walk by the Vidette and see the door closed or the office empty. A staff reporter spends many hours in the office writing as well as gathering material in interviews and research. Other members of the staff work on page layout, copy editing, sports editing and writing, circulation, photography, advertising, proof-reading, and business management as well as reporting for the twice weekly publication. These responsibilities include attending a multitude of staff meetings where problems are discussed, thoughts shared, ideas gathered, and important decisions made.

Accurate, honest, and widespread campus coverage is the meat of Vidette publications, but controversy is never shuttled into the background. Criticism or support of the Vidette's stand on current issues is interpreted as a sign of vital reader interest. As a result few campus organizations have the worker morale and loyalty so common to the Vidette.

Mr. R. W. Tudor aided the staff as adviser.

Cyla Barger was editor of the Vidette first semester, and Steve Peterson took over the job for second semester.

Utilizing the time and talents of many students, the Vidette is laid out by page editors and their assistants.

WGLT

540 On Your Radio

Moving into its third full year of operation, WGLT the first ISU student-manned radio station, proudly boasted of a smooth-running 73 hours of programming per week. The staff emphasized music to study by and syndicated reports on the world scene. The programming, which included every day of the week, was piped into the dormitories and other campus buildings by means of a closed circuit system. A wide variety of listening was available on the 540 KC station—from Bach to the Beatles; from Mulligan to Montavani; from live sports broadcasts to live musical concerts; and from news reports to commentary.

Mary Ann Smeltzer, chief engineer, gives the announcer a cue.

Ed Ceres and Cliff Curley were first semester general manager and program director.

STUDENT SENATE

Voice of Students

By the wayside went ISNU; in came ISU. By the wayside went departmental representation; in its place came representation by housing districts. Thus, the Student Senate began another year in which the plans and projects of previous years were achieved or carried on; while at the same time, activities, plans, and programs for the present and future were laid and enacted. With the achievement of the name change, the Senate turned its efforts to making ISU a multi-purpose institution and continued its work to end segregated off-campus housing. Longer library hours, support of the Campus Chest, selection of the University boards members, and a foreign students' tea were among the other activities of the Student Senate this year.

Exchange of ideas guarantees a democratic student government.

UNIVERSITY UNION BOARD

Culture and Fun

The University Union Board is probably one of the most active organizations on campus. Beginning the year at the Organizational Round-Up, students were acquainted with the Board when they received free balloons. Sponsoring dances was a responsibility undertaken by the group. The Sweetheart Ball, Bonfire Bounce, and various record dances were just a few that were sponsored. It was under the auspices of this group that the mid-semester ski trip and the summer European excursions were realities. New this year were various tournaments in table tennis, chess, and bridge. But all was not fun and games, for the Board sponsored the "Focus on Fine Arts" and the "Look at the World" series, which presented various faculty members and famous speakers. All of these activities made a busy year for the University Union Board.

AWS

Part in Expansion

The coeds of ISU elected Vince Cosmano Mr. MIG.

Women modeled their own clothes at the AWS style show.

Growth in a university implies growth in the programs of university organizations, and the Association of Women Students has expanded its activities to meet the increased social, civic and personal needs of the students. In conjunction with University Club, an entire week-end was planned to honor Dads this year instead of only a single day as in the past. The trip to New York to visit the United Nations and the World's Fair was a fresh opportunity for many to broaden their knowledge of world affairs. Instead of terminating its program a few weeks after first semester began, the campus sisters organized a sports night in cooperation with the Women's Recreation Association for the incoming students of second semester. In these ways, the Association of Women Students took part in the expansion of Illinois State University.

U CLUB

For School Spirit

In promoting school spirit among the entire student body, the University Club co-sponsored many activities with the Association of Women Students. Among these were the freshmen and all-school mixers, Dad's Day, Mother's Day, the Carnival, and the Marion DeYoung lecture series. The publication of Campus Cues, a handbook for incoming freshmen, helped innumerable new students. The Redbird Rally and Stunt Show displayed school spirit that was never to be forgotten. At Christmas time, instead of the traditional service, a food drive for needy families in the area was held. Unforgettable was the informal cheering section at the football game against Wesleyan. Parades, banners, songs, pompons, and loud cheering were all a part of the fun that went into school spirit promoted by U club.

A Voice from Within

From within the deep recesses of the soul a cry is heard. It is a still, small voice which quite often goes unheard and unheeded in the hustle-bustle of campus activities. But in the quiet hours of contemplative solitude, the plaintive cry wells up until it becomes a shout, and the shout can not be hushed. The voice screams for a spiritual uplifting, a faith, a belief in a God. In many this cry is never heard, never understood, for they will not allow it to enter into their hearts; but many have heeded their spiritual messenger, sought out their God, and have placed Him in their lives.

APOSTOLIC CHRISTIAN BIBLE CLASS

Worship services and fellowship made up the integral portion of the Apostolic Christian Bible Class. An Easter program consisting of a meaningful worship service rounded out a year of concentrated Christian study for this well-organized group.

United by Our Faith

Our heads are bowed, our knees are bent, our hands are folded—we are in prayer. Across centuries of time we join the many others in the expression of our faith. Though the prayer and creed differ, we are united in our deep belief in an ultimate Higher Being.

Furthering Their Interests and Education

The honorary organization gives the high achievers in the academic community a chance to further their interests and education. The various groups plan and execute informative meetings and worthwhile campus projects. But there is more than this involved. The honorary offers a distinct recognition of those who excel. Many aspire to these organizations, but few are admitted. For this reason, the honorary maintains its status as a reward and as an indicator of students who have achieved their academic goal.

To Cheer, Charm, and Capture the Spirit

Ray Dalton, the ISU Redbird, cheers with the spectators.

The smoke from a pile of sizzling leaves, the slight nip in the once warm breezes—these signal the coming of fall and the beginning of a new and exciting school year. From the very first moments, enthusiasm and pep envelop the campus and the student body, and tension fills the air. Contributing greatly to this emotional fervor were the effervescent prompters of school spirit, the cheerleaders. Their presence at all athletic events and pep rallies throughout the fall and winter added vitality and charm to the zealous spirit that filled every excited follower. Aiding the cheerleaders in the leadership of cheers and chants was the dazzling ISU Redbird, a bouncing whirl of pep and enthusiasm. Romping gaily through amazing acrobatic maneuvers, the Redbird imparted to the spectators an overwhelming feeling of zest which was reflected in every cheer. Equally effective boosters of school spirit were the colorful Coryphees, a precision dance team which added rhythm to the ardent cheers. Through the combined efforts of the vivacious cheerleaders, lively Redbird, energetic Coryphees, and of course the student body, enthusiasm was constantly at a high pitch ISU.

A good play deserves a cheer.

WRA

The primary goals of the Women's Recreation Association are to advance the standards of sportsmanship, to promote athletics, and to encourage and to develop the physical and mental strength of all women students at ISU through intramural and extramural sports. Highlights of the year included an undefeated extramural basketball team and a camping trip in the spring at which the new officers were initiated.

I CLUB

In keeping with the name change of the University, the members of the N Club voted to change their name to I Club. This is a group of men who have earned a varsity letter in competitive athletics; their purpose is to improve athletics and the various events and facilities. Among the activities of the organization were the supervision of the Homecoming Queen election and a dinner dance held at the end of the year.

Activities Between the Busy Hours

During the four seasons of the year the physical education departments are busily at work organizing various activities and recreations for the men and women of Illinois State. These activities provide students with non-varsity competition and relaxing exercise, a refreshing change from classes and study.

The advent, this year, of coeducational swimming in the new, olympic size Horton Fieldhouse swimming pool has greatly popularized swimming for both the men and women of ISU. And, along with the swimming there are the men's intramural program and the women's intramural and extramural activities which include such sports as softball, soccer, golf, tennis, bowling, basketball, volleyball, and track. It is obvious that an institution such as Illinois State—expanding so rapidly—is meeting the demands of large numbers of men and women who seek stimulating physical recreation. Various organizations and groups enter teams in the sports, but the highlights of the year are the spring track meets for both on-campus and off-campus men.

Winners at the Beginning and the End

Although the Redbirds opened and closed the 1963 football season with wins, it was the interim that accounted for the final sad story. The opening victory over Millikin led many to take an optimistic view of the forthcoming season, but it was not long lived. Losses of 20-7 and 28-14 to Indiana State and Western Illinois respectively, did much to take the temper out of what had first appeared to be a well-honed and successful Illinois State football team.

One of the few bright lights to penetrate the Redbird's gloomy 3-6 football season came in the person of Ed Thomas, senior halfback. Thomas emerged from the sidelines this season after three years on the bench to cop the Most Valuable Player award. Thomas, who on a number of occasions came close to gaining 150 yards in a game, had one of his best days against Wesleyan when he garnered 143 yards and sparked his team to a 27-7 victory over our traditional rivals.

Along with the excellent work done by co-captains Tom Petit, linebacker, and Don Miller, tackle; two defense men, Britt Farroh, end, and Dick Zion, halfback, will be remembered for their consistent harassment of the opposition. It was Zion who picked off an ill-thrown pass by Mankato's Gary Weedman and raced 78 yards for the lone Redbird TD which proved to be enough for a slim 7-6 victory. And it was varsity football mentor, Ed Struck who said that defensive player Britt Farroh "... always does a great job."

Once again, it was Coach Struck who axiomed, "... a losing team is never as bad as the record shows." A perfect example of this came before a homecoming crowd of some 12,000 when the Redbirds lost to Central Michigan, 24-22. The Birdies outplayed the Chippewas in every department—yards rushing, 264-154; yards passing, 114-29; first downs, 20-9; and if it weren't for a perfectly placed punt by CMU, or the subsequent fumble by ISU, the Redbirds would have won the contest. Sadly, many "ifs" were involved in that game, as they were in most of the games the Redbirds played during the 1963 football season.

Coach Struck analyzed: "This squad has got a lot of power, but just hasn't received the breaks."

Going around right end, Ed Thomas follows Court and Vaught.

Juniors Compile Impressive Record

Bill Sneddon prepares to go crashing through the line.

"I think this year's crop of boys is one of the best we have ever had," commented Ed Struck, head football coach, on the JV team. Under the coaching of Milt Weisbecker and the leadership of freshman quarterback Virgil Martin, the Illinois State JV team compiled a 4-0-1 record, allowing only 14 points to be scored against them in 5 contests while piling up 133 points of their own in as many games.

One of the key factors in the JV strength came from the tremendous depth of the bench. For example, Bill Mills and Tony D'Anza were ready to spell Virgil Martin at the quarterback position at any given moment.

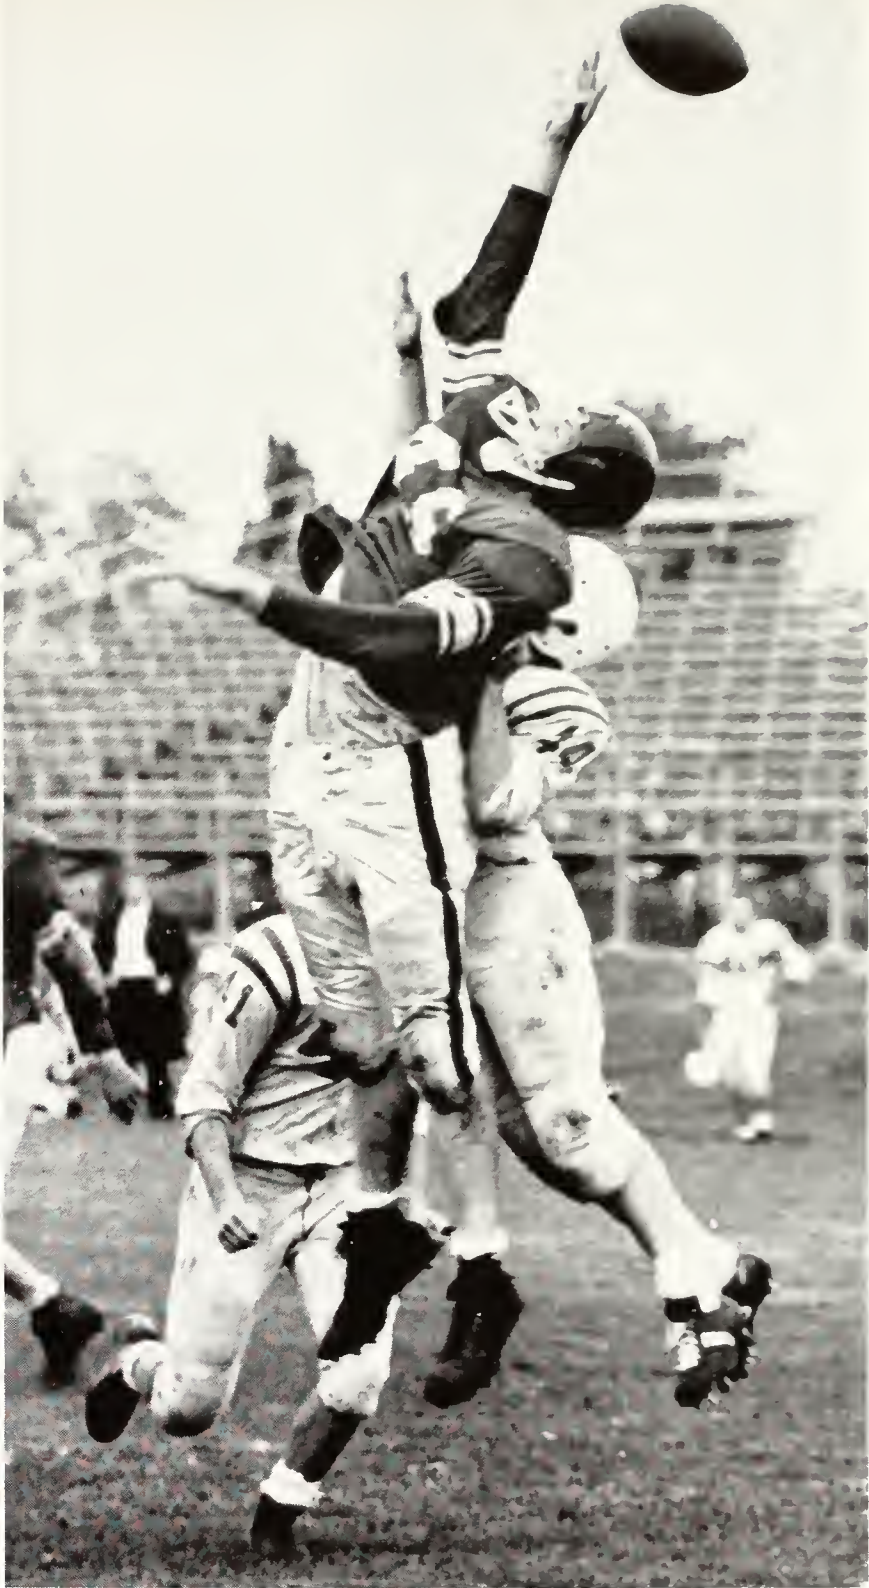

Outstanding at halfback was Ajay Martin, who consistently peeled off needed yardage, and also came up with many fine, long runs. In the JV's second triumph of the season over EIU, the fleet back accounted for two of the four Illinois State touchdowns. The first came on a 27-yard sprint through the Panther defense, and the second on a brilliant 72-yard run which put the Redbirds out in front with a very comfortable 19-0 halftime lead over their opponents.

With three excellent passers on the squad it is no wonder that the team did most of its scoring via the airways. It was Marshall Skinner, who was the favorite passing target. In the victory over WIU, Skinner caught two TD passes and ran 45-yards on an intercepted Leatherneck toss. In this contest, fullback Bill Sneddon once again showed the characteristics of a good back.

CROSS COUNTRY

Best in Ten Years

Since 1927, Joe Cogdal has devoted much time to coaching Illinois State cross country squads. His constant work has shown in the over all record. Some years have been lean, and some haven't, but, in all, his teams have won 24 championships and have had 8 undefeated dual meet seasons. And, it comes as a great compliment that, even though their record was not outstanding, Coach Cogdal thought that the 1963 harriers were the best in at least 10 years.

Although the Illinois State cross country squad finished the season with a 4-3 dual meet record, they could boast of the running of Captain Mike Mittelstaedt, who lost only three times all season—once to nationally famous Tom O'Hara of Loyola and twice to Bill Kozar of Western Illinois. Mike took care in the State Meet at DeKalb, when he placed second behind O'Hara, to keep plenty of distance between himself and Kozar, who finished 23 seconds later. Mittelstaedt completed the season by placing eighth in the highly competitive NAIA Meet at Omaha, Nebraska.

The addition of freshmen Al Withers and Mike Askew did much to strengthen the harriers group attack. In fact, the squad bettered their previous year's record by notching a fourth in the tough state meet, whereas last year they placed seventh. In the IIAC they clinched third place, while last year they came in a disappointing fifth. Although the loss of their ace, Mike Mittelstaedt, will hurt, the team's newly elected captain, Virgil Kuhnert, should prove to be a thorn in the side of any competitor.

Stiffly, the backstrokers hit the water.

After many futile seasons of competition the Redbird tankers have finally been rewarded for their hours of hard labor. In this past season the Birdies broke loose from their previous seasons' records and, for once, tasted success, even though they were not conference champs. More than ever it was a team effort that allowed for the clinching of third place in the IIAC Meet, an enviable accomplishment for the team.

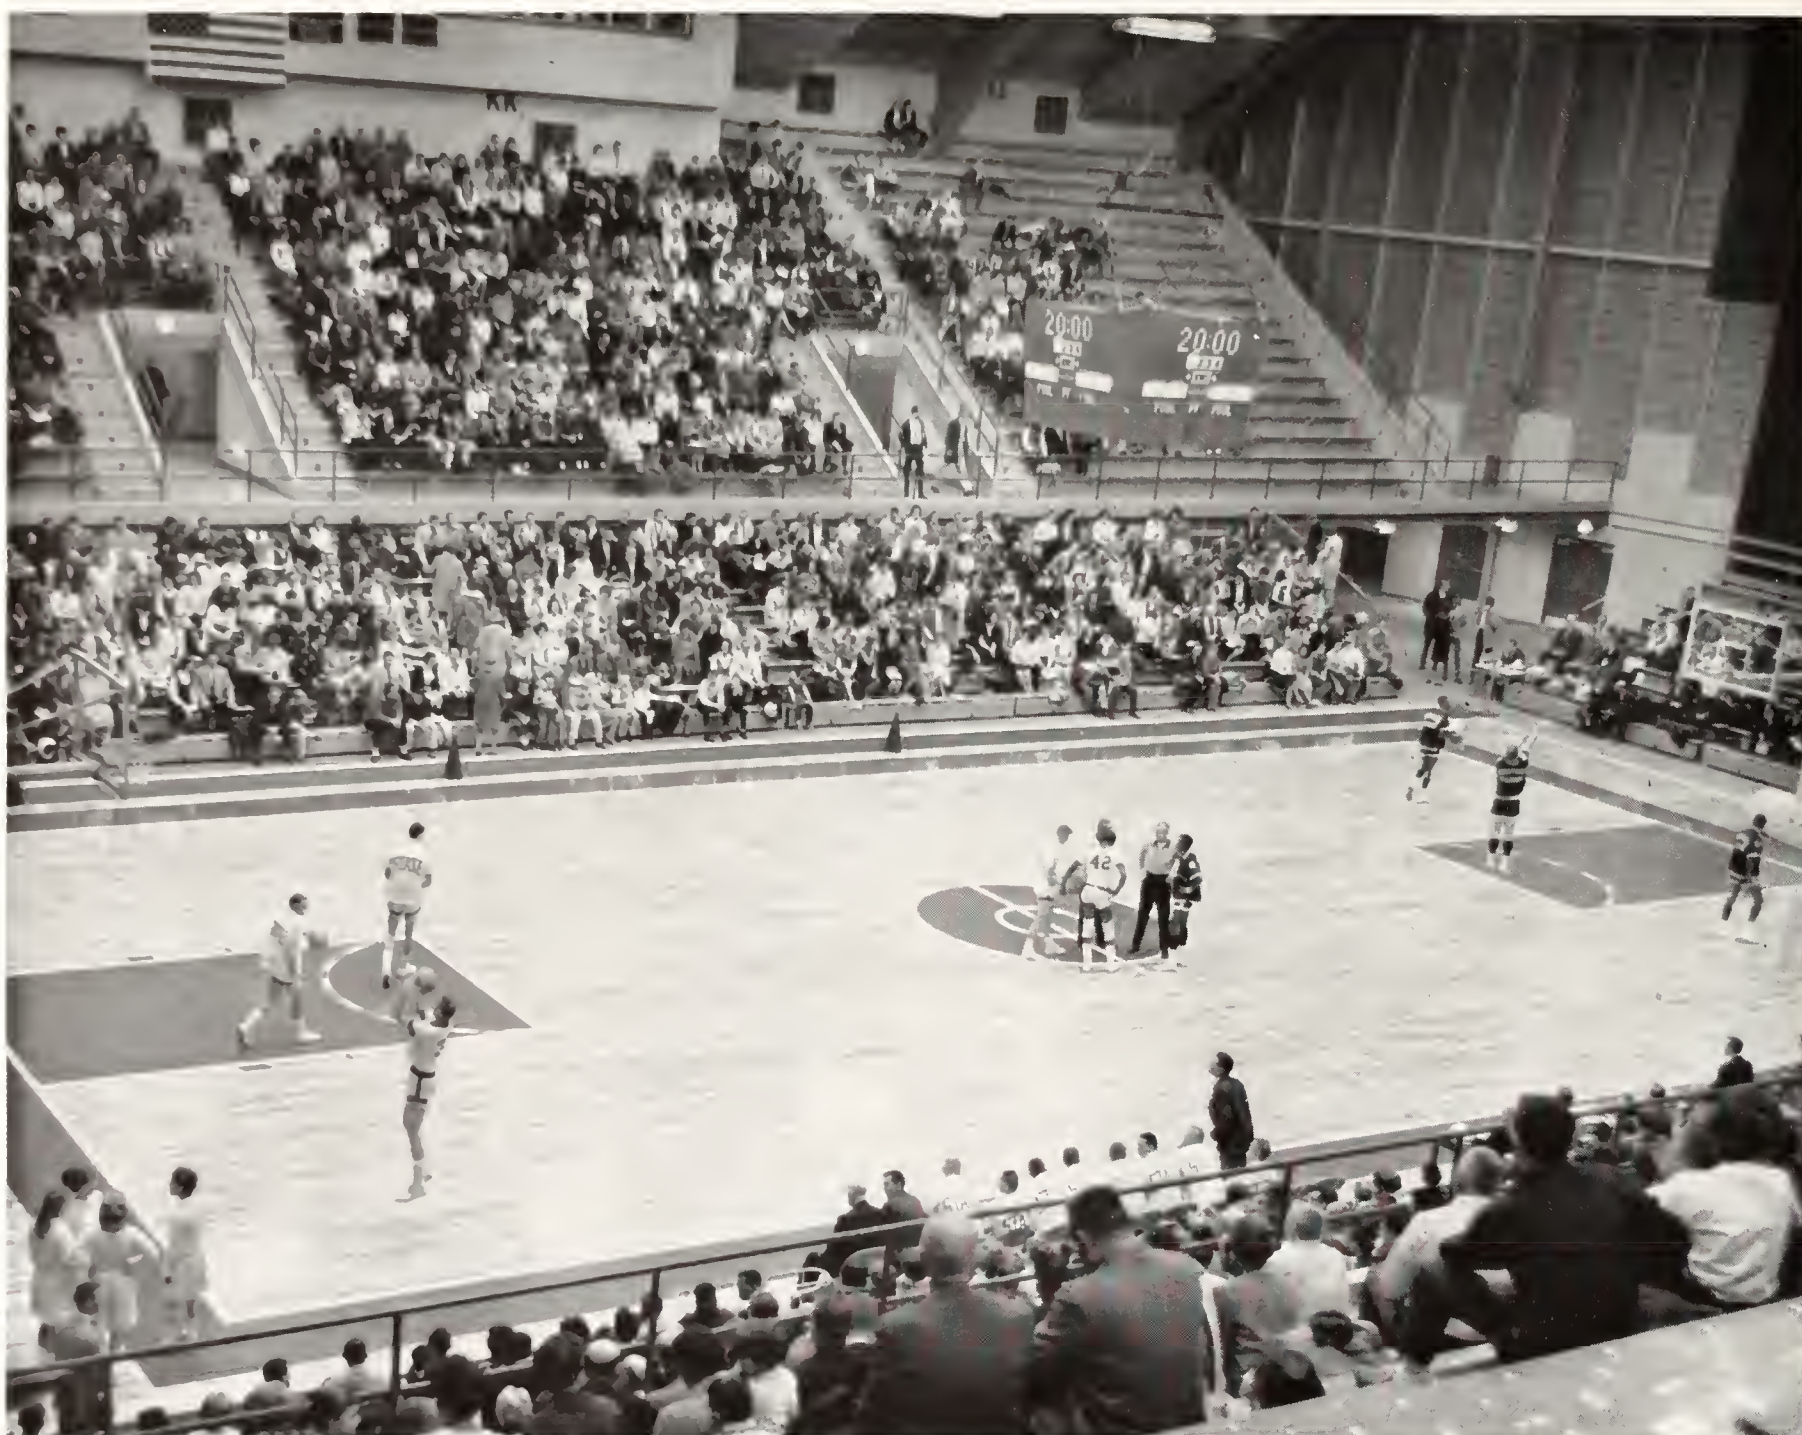

But a number of individuals stood out for their consistently fine performances over the season. Among these performers were Co-captains Dick Benson and Jim Voss, who were also the only lettermen lost to the squad because of graduation. Top honors must go to sophomore Dick Kirgan, who culminated the season by breaking the conference record in the IIAC Meet in the 200 yard freestyle event with a time of 1:56.5, trimming the old record by almost three full seconds. In addition, Kirgan broke the team records in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle competition. He had the only individual first place in the IIAC Meet.

The medley relay team composed of Terry Shoup, Dick Barsema, Dick Kirgan, and Rudi Timmerman highlighted their season's achievements by breaking the team record with a 4:06.8 time. Timmerman was also a consistent winner in the backstroke events. Veteran Rich Russell, one of the mainstays on the Redbird swimming squad, was the top distance man in dual meets with a consistently fine performance.

Coach Archie Harris is given the baptismal rites by his delighted tankers.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Birds Compile Winning Overall Record

It was an up-and-down year for the Redbird Five. Their overall record was impressive, but it belied the fact that the squad limped to a measly 2-6 record in conference play. Hot first halves and cold second halves were the crux of the Birdie troubles. This was the case throughout the season, and it was their downfall.

In the second contest of the season against the Big Blue of Millikin, the Birdies held an impressive 47-31 lead at halftime, but the second half was another story. A full court press by the Blue cooled the Redbird offense, enabling them to pull within one point, 72-71, with four minutes left in the game. But baskets by Sorrell and Vaughn, plus control of the ball for the remaining time, put the game away for keeps.

More second half trouble was incurred in the heart-breaking return match loss, 62-61, to Eastern Illinois. This time a plague of fouls—Preston Jordan with three fouls in three minutes—upset the Redbird's delicate balance. Ahead by only three points at halftime, the Birdies could not hold on; even freezing the ball in the last few minutes of play went for naught. As it was, Cruser's 20 points went to a losing cause.

John Cruser, junior guard, was named the most valuable player and was unanimously selected by the conference coaches to the IIAC first team. The 5 foot 10 playmaker with an average of 18.6 per game commanded his team to a 15-10 season record. His 848 percentage from the charity stripe won for him the Hall Free Throw Trophy.

Preston Jordan was second in the scoring column for Coach Jim Collie's Redbirds. The big center-forward averaged 15.6 per game, with a total of 391 points, and had a .493 shooting percentage from the field.

Co-captain Bob Sorrell was third in scoring for the Birdies. As a senior, he compiled 319 points for a 12.8 average. Sorrell is one of three lettermen who has completed his eligibility for ISU.

Wardell Vaughn, also a co-captain, retired midway through the season because of ineligibility. Still he notched enough points to put him in the number four slot in scoring, averaging 11.8 for 15 games.

Jim Conrad and Mike Akin were number five and six respectively with 6.0 and 5.9 averages.

The losses of Conrad, Sorrell, Correll, and Vaughn will cut deeply into the Redbird offense, but John Cruser and teammates will have to do double duty.

JV BASKETBALL

Under the newly appointed direction of Coach John Gelch the JV's went through a year of what might be called varsity apprenticeship. Although it was not a winning season, the Birdies did compile a commendable 4-2 record in conference competition.

Joe Wischnowski was the high point man all season long. The big forward scored the most points in one game with a season high of 28 notched against Joliet in the return match. Along with Wischnowski and making up the nucleus of the squad were Glen Lehnus, all-around man; Duane Bruninga, center; Ed Sennett, guard; Pat Fiene, forward; and Bob Lorenz, guard, who started late in the season for the quintet.

Big wins came against the IIAC members. The win over Northern Illinois in the return meeting was highlighted by Pat Fiene's 18 points. Double wins over Western Illinois and a return win over Joliet were very gratifying indeed. Although the squad lost to Wilson by 6 points, they were behind the Chicago JC. at one point, by 23 points. A couple of overtime losses, the two games lost to Wesleyan, and the one point loss to North Central were the slight differences in what could have been a very successful season.

GYMNASTICS

The Squad's First Winning Season

Neil Whittington, coming off the parallel bars . . .

The Illinois State gymnasts had what could be called the best season in their young history even though they did finish third in the IIAC Tournament. Their season record of 7-4 also contained a record high of 92½ points for a single contest. Whereas in past years the gymnasts were always running to catch their opponents, this past season the Redbirds turned the tables and had most every opponent gasping and bewildered over the excellence that Coach Wayne Truex had instilled in his few years as gymnastic team coach.

Once again junior letterman, Paul Ziert, paced the team with an unbeaten season in free exercise and tumbling. Ziert, who won the tumbling and free exercise events in last year's IIAC Tournament and who placed fifth in the NCAA tumbling competition, repeated his positions in these two meets again this year. In the IIAC Tournament Ziert compiled 32 total team points as the third leading individual scorer of the meet. Along with his firsts in free exercise and tumbling he snatched up a second in the trampoline event.

John Fussner, doing the scissors trick.

Co-captain Dale Manning, consistent winner all year long, captured a third in both all-around and long horse competition while Neil Whittington placed second on the long horse in the IIAC Tourney.

One of the big wins of the season came against highly rated Northern Illinois in the midst of the six straight wins that marked the close of the season. The 75½ to 50½ win was highlighted by Ziert's capturing 22 team points. But it was also the final performance before the home fans for senior Co-captain Ryan Smith, who very gratifyingly came through with a key victory in the difficult side horse while adding a second on the high bar. Neil Whittington and Tom Kordewick contributed nine team points apiece while Dale Manning closed his ISU home career with a total of 17 points. The remaining points were picked up by John Fussner, Jim Furrow, and Dan Malloy. The record and the team's vast improvement speak for themselves.

Grapplers Win IIAC Crown

A spurt of adrenalin and a grimace by Bob Clark . . .

Illinois State's wrestling team, behind individual champions Captain Carl Hovde, Al Powell, and Dave Theesfeld, ran away from the rest of the conference to bring the Redbirds their first IIAC championship since 1955. The Redbirds highlighted their surprisingly good season by what must be called a resounding shelling of the rest of the IIAC competition, even though the squad lost more than half of its grapplers midway through the season for various reasons.

The Birdies ran up a total of 71 points in capturing the conference crown. Eastern Illinois finished a distant second in relinquishing its crown to the Redbirds. The three IIAC champs, Al Powell, 115 lbs.; Carl Hovde, 157 lbs.; and heavyweight Dave Theesfeld, had 9-1-1, 14-3, and 12-3 season records respectively. Ron Bessemer, 123 lbs. with a season record of 7-2, and Mark Walker, 137 lbs. with a record of 7-5 for season competition, captured second places in the IIAC Tournament. Adding important third place points were Bill Rumchak, Bob Clark, and Jerry Kahn. Led by the three champs, the second placers, and the three thirds, the Birdies had the meet won long before Dave Theesfeld notched the final victory.

The Devouring Hand of Time

The loss of a shoe goes unnoticed to Garrett Scott.

Once again the Illinois State track team produced a number of outstanding individual performers, but, over the long haul, the lack of depth and overall team thinness cancelled the hopes of a big winning season for track Coach Joe Cogdal.

The 1963 track squad had the distinction of listing six holders of indoor or outdoor track and field records. Don Korte, captain, holds the 300 yard indoor mark at :31.8; Tom Powell holds an indoor high jump mark of 6'3"; Bill McConkey holds the outdoor 120 high hurdle record at :15.3; Norm English holds both the outdoor and indoor pole vault marks at 13' and 12'7" respectively; Dennis Fulk has notched the 70 yard low hurdle record with a :07.4 indoor mark; and Mike Mittelstaedt, the squad's long distance ace, holds both the outdoor and indoor two mile marks at 9:29.6 and 9:41.2 respectively.

Though the loss of Don Korte through graduation will hurt, third year veteran Mike Mittelstaedt should prove to be as consistent a performer as Captain Korte. Korte finished an outstanding year by receiving the "N" Club's Redbird award for outstanding leadership, scholarship, and athletic ability.

BASEBALL

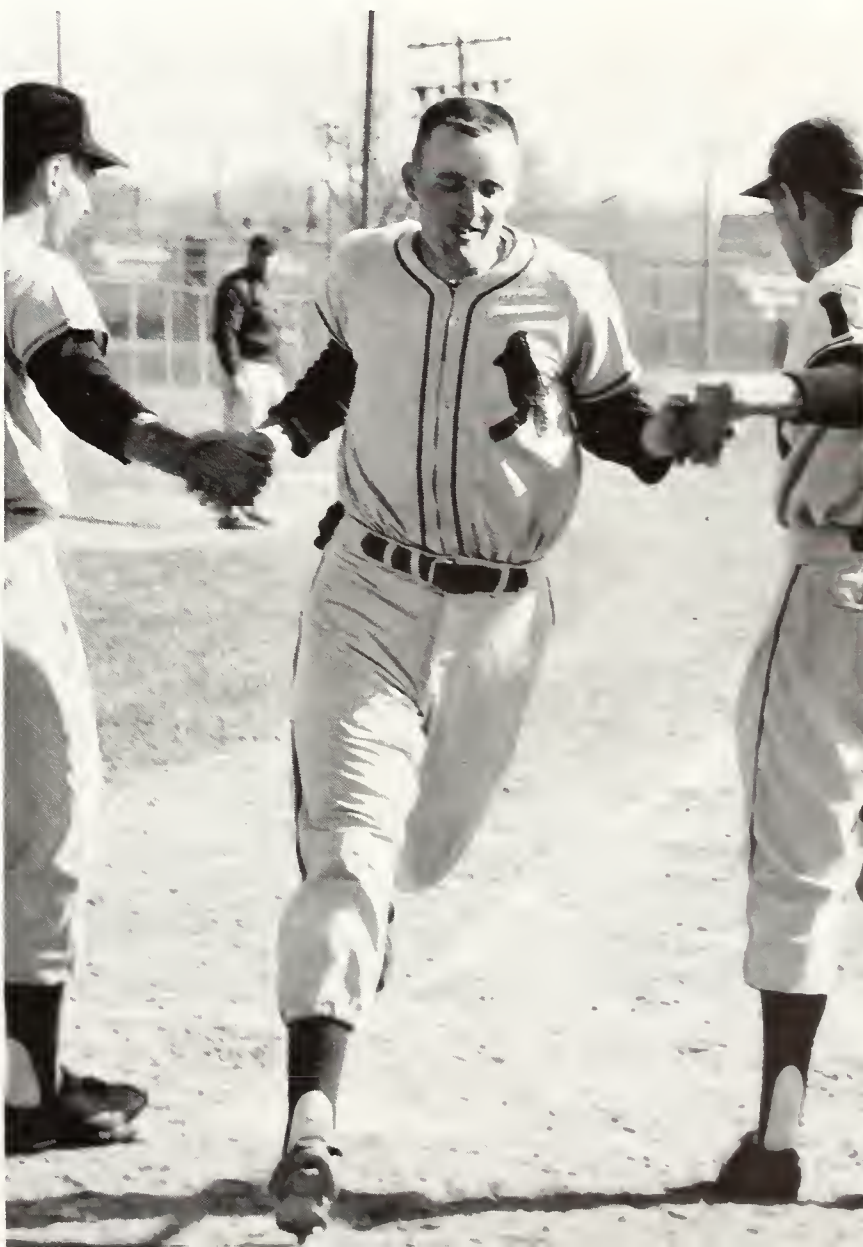

A Season Plagued by Inconsistency

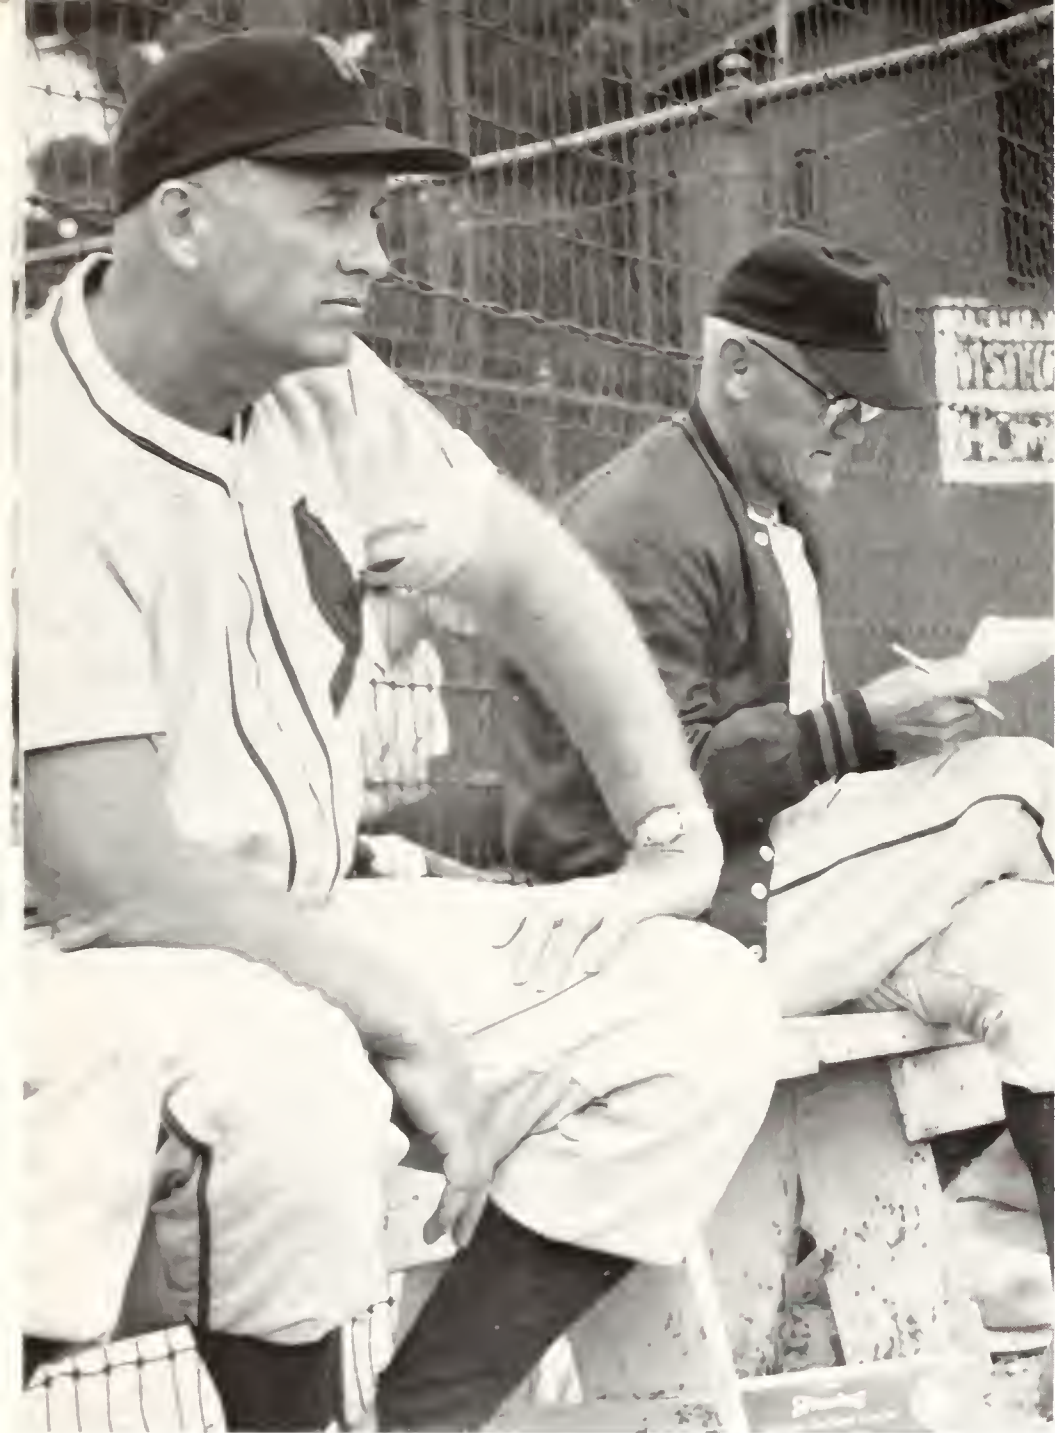

The ISNU diamondmen can be summed up simply as being unpredictable. It was a very trying season, indeed, for the Birdies. Coach Harold Frye was plagued all season by weak hitting and erratic pitching.

Bob Grisolano, three year veteran catcher, led the team in hitting with a .270 mark for the 28 games played by the squad. Not too far behind was Co-captain Charlie Shuckhart, smooth-fielding shortstop, with a .240 average. The senior veteran also led in RBI's with 16 and had three home runs and three doubles. Named with Shuckhart as honorary co-captain was Bill Brown, who had an off year at the plate, averaging .229. Brown was the only other graduating member of the Illinois State squad which compiled a 12-16 overall mark.

The top pitcher to emerge from the season's disappointing darkness and to add a little ray of hope to the future was Henry "Irish" O'Reilly, freshman left-hander. He turned in a 4-3 mark and an excellent 1.89 earned run average along with 56 strikeouts in 61 innings pitched for the season. Righthander Bill Evans, who pitched 59 innings, had a 4-5 record along with 47 strikeouts and a very respectable 3.15 earned run average at the end of the season.

Play Ball

With a very slow start and with three double-header splits, it looked as though the Birdies would never take flight. But just as all seemed black, the Redbirds came up with a double victory against McKendree College which was enough to lift everyone's hopes; but sadly enough it wasn't a true forecast of what was to come for the rest of the season. In winning the doubleheader, 5-2 and 2-1, the squad received route-going performances from Bill Evans and "Irish" O'Reilly.

It was the pitching of Evans and O'Reilly that sparked another dual victory later in the season against Northern Illinois showing the capabilities of the team when they were "on their game." In going the distance in the 4-2 victory, Evans was backed by an unusually strong offensive attack of 10 hits, including a home run by Bob Grisolano. And in the nightcap, although he gave up 9 hits, O'Reilly was given brilliant team support in achieving the 6-4 victory.

With the hope of getting a rally started, the Redbird diamond men talk it up from the bench.

TENNIS

Netters Grab Second Place in IIAC

Bill Powell demonstrates his backhand artistry.

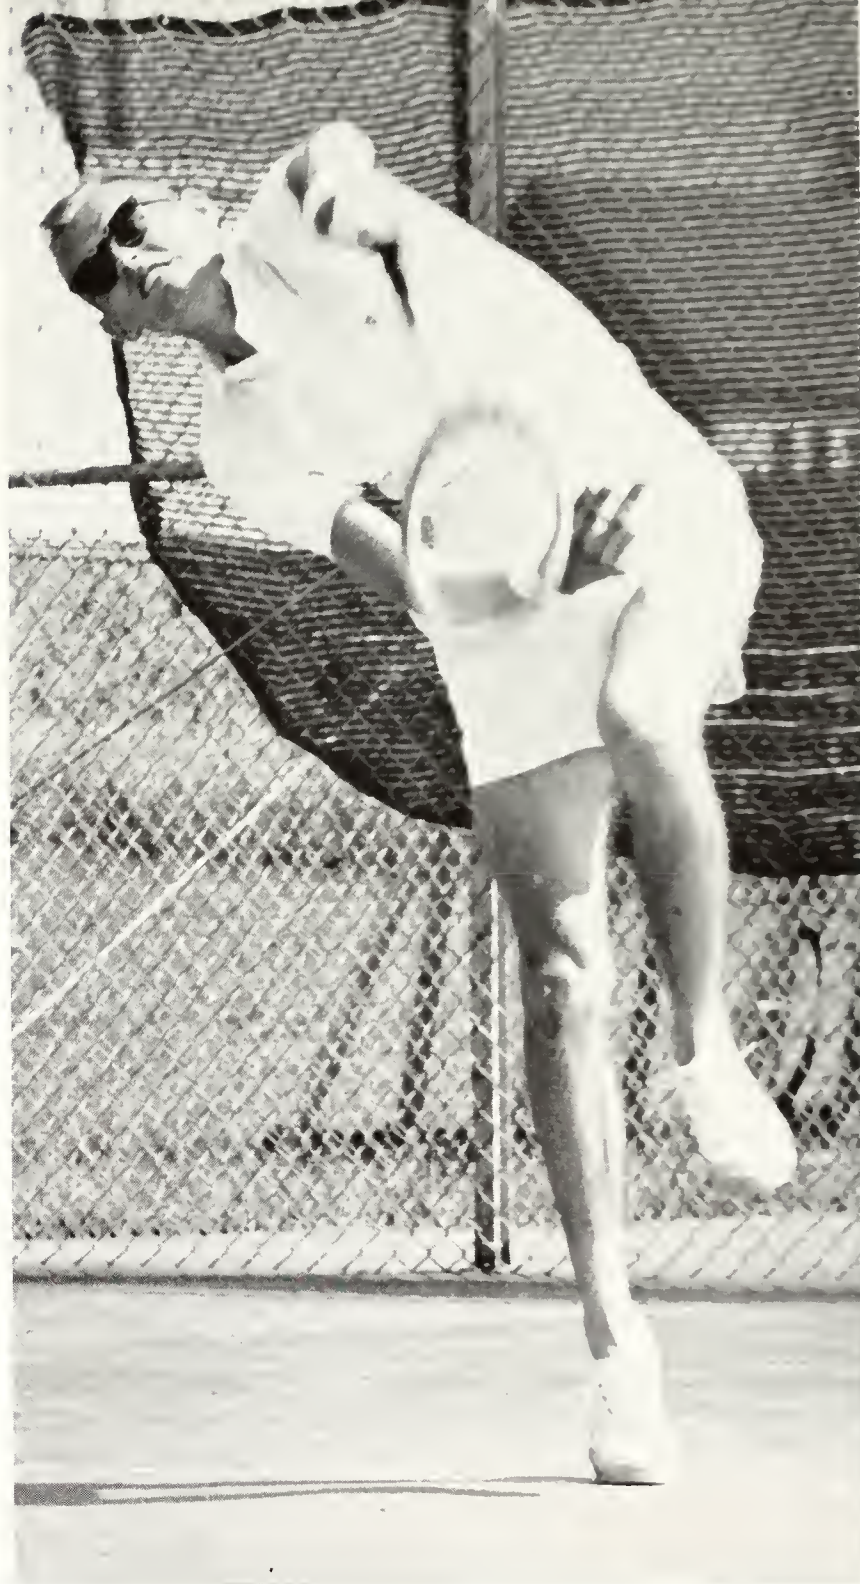

One of the really shining stars in the Illinois State sports galaxy was the tennis squad. Slow but persistent work over the years has paid off for Coach Eugene Hill. The year's success was due mainly to the added experience of the team as a whole and to the marked improvement in the four, five and six positions—Dave Swisher, U. of I. transfer student, and seniors Dan Dutz and John Balsis, who filled the last three positions admirably. If it hadn't been for a slow start—one win and five losses during spring vacation—the squad would have had an even more impressive record. But because of the stiff competition during such a short span of time, the Birdies had trouble getting off the ground. After spring vacation the schedule thinned out a bit; it was then that the team gelled and turned around to win six straight meets.

Led by Captain Lothar Peistrup, and receiving clutch performances from John Balsis and Dan Dutz, the Redbirds, for the second year in a row, placed second in the IIAC court championship. In placing second the netters were downed by a slim 19-18 margin in favor of Central Michigan, the home team.

GOLF

Linksmen Enjoy Winning Season

Ed Fey blasts out of a sand trap.

The Illinois State linksmen ended up in fourth place in the IIAC meet, but their 10-5 overall record shows the unreliability of judging a team by one meet. The obvious point is that the golfers simply did not play up to their capabilities in the conference meet. Things do look bright for following seasons with the promising crop of freshmen; Jerry Diamond of Peoria and Richie Green of Bloomington should be consistent winners for the Illinois State golf team.

Senior Captain Roger LaRochelle notched an eighth place in the IIAC meet with a two day total of 327. Throughout the season, LaRochelle led his linksmen with consistent and spirited play. Ironically, one of the biggest psychological victories of the season was over arch rival Wesleyan without the help of LaRochelle. But strong second year men Ed Fey and Rusty Wells, and freshman Richie Green posted 72's to pace the Red and White to victory.

PRESIDENT BONE

If Illinois State University has the reputation of being a friendly school, much of the credit goes to our esteemed President, Robert G. Bone, who fosters and radiates an atmosphere of cheer and good will wherever he goes. And he goes often and everywhere. The watchful student will observe President Bone at Homecoming activities, at a basketball game, an Entertainment Board program, a play, Gamma Phi Circus, AWS Carnival, or a school dance. He seems to be a man of boundless enthusiasm and energy as he fulfills his official position of school executive or his honorary position of the students' friend. Although President Bone projects the vitality of youth, he retains a dignity and distinction that speak of his wisdom and experience. Illinois State students are very proud of their new fieldhouse, exploding enrollment, and the expanding campus, but most of all they take pride in their President, who exemplifies all that is admired and respected in the scholar, the teacher, and the man.

Since administration is the key to a smoothly running university, the men and women who work in Hovey Hall strive to accomplish this end. Little is said about these people who aid us, the students, in our great endeavors. Unknown to many students, a major change took place on campus before the ISU name change. In September 1963, the structure of the administration was reorganized to keep pace with the growth of the University. Directly under the control of the Teachers College Board are the President, University Council, and Administrative Council who now represent the upper echelon at ISU. Under these positions are the Executive Secretary and the Assistant to the President; immediately below these men are the Coordinator of Budgets and the Coordinator of Development. Under the supervision of the President and directing the remaining offices are the Vice-President for Academic Affairs (Dean of the Faculty), the Director of Public Services, the Dean of Students, and the Vice-President of Administrative Affairs. Having undergone this major change, our administration is now better equipped to grow and expand with Illinois State University.

UNIVERSITY SERVICES

Maintained for Student Convenience

The job of the Health Service is to diagnose and treat the ailments of the students.

Besides cashing checks, the cashier accepts all fees.

The IBM machine plays an important role at the Testing Service.

With all the rush and concentration involved in carrying on an academic life, most students forget that there is more to Illinois State University than the departments, faculty, and administration. Helping the University to function smoothly are various special services. On registration day, who can help but think of the lines at the textbook service; but, we eventually get all our books. Think, also, about the delicious rolls, pies, and cakes that are consumed every day on campus. The bakery prepares these every morning as we are sleeping. Throughout the year, we may encounter the work of some of the other services. Perhaps we wish to know what field to enter, so we make use of the facilities offered at the Counseling Service. Toward graduation, each senior thinks of the Bureau of Appointments and the Alumni Office. Through the entire year, we use the services of the University Cashier, the Health Service, the Security Office, and the Mail Service. News coverage of campus events is carried on by the Publicity Service and the Photo Service. In these ways the University is kept running smoothly and efficiently. Too often, we forget the many services that are offered to us without our knowledge and without our praise: moments of reflection reveal our dependence upon them.

The Security Office uses radio equipment to report, dispatch, and complete an order.

Meet and Learn for a Common Goal

"... and gladly would he learn and gladly teach." This is the motto of Illinois State University, the creed by which we live on this campus. We are all seeking an education; perhaps in one field, perhaps in another, but we put our academic pursuits before most other activities. By our interests, we have been divided into three general divisions, Elementary and Junior High, Secondary, and Special Education. But our divisions do not separate us, for we meet and learn together in every department. We have general education requirements to fulfill before we can delve into the field of our major interest. And when we reach the point where all is completed and we are ready for the experience of teaching, we learn that "gladly teach" is not an empty phrase.

The fascinating process: learning.

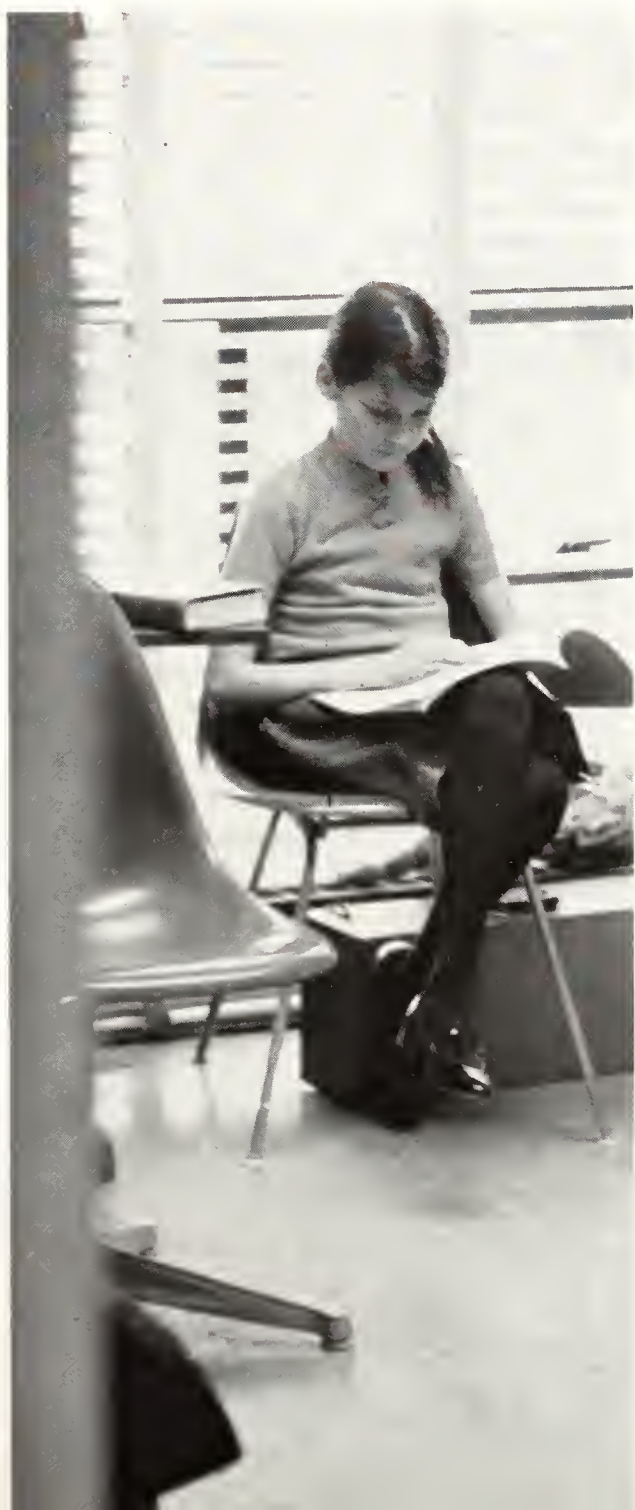

"Wait 'til I get this tied!"

ELEMENTARY EDUCATION AND JUNIOR HIGH

The very beginning of learning, where does it start? Of course it begins in the home, but the special anticipation with which the child awaits his first day of school tells the importance of the early school years. These are the years when lasting impressions will be made, and the child will be molded by what he learns in his first experience with school life. Dedicated to providing future elementary and junior high school teachers with significant academic and laboratory experiences to meet these challenges, the Division of Elementary Education is constantly trying to improve its program. A variety of courses in every field is designed to help the future teacher gain a broad knowledge of the basic skills and understandings. Now the teacher may begin—begin to tell of the world and its secrets.

Dr. Nance explains the process of four-year programs.

Attentive and concentrating, the children listen to the teacher's story.

SECONDARY EDUCATION

Laboratory of Life

New trends in secondary education appear prevalent as individual abilities and potentialities are being sought out and developed in accelerated classes. The necessity for education has reached a higher peak in America than most people ever imagined. In an attempt to achieve excellence in education, while maintaining equality for those students having the same or similar capabilities, segregated classes for exceptional pupils have come into being, with the teacher acting as guide in lifelong learning. The growth of the individual in all aspects—moral, social, physical—might be termed the key to modern secondary education; the goal being to aid the individual in discovering his potential and using it as a contributor to the ideal American society of tomorrow. Aiding in the growth of the total individual is a challenge for the high school teacher.

Typical of high school are the many campaigns.

Framed by the lacy patterns of the trees, University High School puts the theories of education into actuality.

Individualized experimentation promotes a scientific attitude.

Vocational education is a preparation for life.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

Educating for Complete Participation

Although the main task of special education is to educate exceptional children—deaf, crippled, visually impaired, mentally retarded, maladjusted, or gifted—to live in our society, another of its prime functions is to help normal people accept these children as fellow individuals for what they have to offer as human beings. A person's true worth is that which he contributes to society; special education enables those children with unusual needs to develop abilities with which they may make an optimum contribution to society. The student who prepares himself as a teacher of exceptional children will make a great contribution to the realization of the American ideal of an adequate education for all children within the individual's capabilities.

AGRICULTURE

Farming and Business

To facilitate more extensive training, the Agriculture Department is taking advantage of its increased enrollment. In preparing leaders who will participate in the improvement and expansion of the modern agricultural industry, the department transmits necessary technical knowledge for teacher education. The modern farm operator must be an efficient, well-educated, and trained businessman. Graduates of this department have been equipped to be and to develop this kind of farmer. New facilities give students opportunities to use the most modern machinery and work with high-quality breeding herds in all major classes of livestock. Animals are used in classroom research, and excellent land has been provided for research and demonstration purposes.

Dr. Hoover explains the work of his department.

ART Creativity in All

Providing opportunities for all students in the University, the Art Department offers creative experiences in the visual arts. Students electing an art major have a wide variety of theoretical and studio courses including painting, sculpture, print-making, ceramics, jewelry, and weaving. The department also provides courses to meet the needs of elementary education, special education, home economics, and industrial arts majors. Courses of a more general nature meet requirements for students in general education. Students working toward advanced degrees have an opportunity to work with specialists in studio and academic areas. At the doctoral level, there is an emphasis upon the development of scholarly and creative competencies.

Dr. Rilett, head of the Biological Sciences Department, surveys the construction of the science annex.

BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES

Life Sciences... Continuous Advancement

Tremendous advancements in science characterize our world today; therefore, constant revision of teaching materials and facilities must be made. Meeting this challenge with the opening of the new science annex, the Biological Science Department is keeping pace with scientific achievement. Already, scientists have discovered the intricate details of cell structures and understand the functions of many of them. The evolutionary pattern of man and other animals is now becoming clear, and the solution of many world problems lies in a sounder understanding of biological principles. For man to enjoy a happier, healthier life, it is vital that he be acquainted with the basic principles of the life sciences and that he be able to implement them into practical situations. Only then can one understand man's place in a rapidly changing world.

BUSINESS EDUCATION

Outstanding Features in a New Building

Dr. Toll offers a fine explanation of the world of business.

"Business needs teachers!" This is the cry that the Business Department must heed in order to be valuable to the world at large. Students are prepared to teach in secondary schools, junior colleges, business schools, and four-year colleges as well as to enter the business world as management trainees. The business student from ISU has many educational opportunities. With the new offices and classrooms in Turner Hall being used for the first time this year, the vista of business experience has widened. Among the outstanding features are the electronically controlled secretarial skills laboratory, an elaborate merchandising and advertising classroom with a sample store and display windows, and a departmental library including all business texts and literature from the business world.

Dr. Philpot, head of the Department of Education and Psychology, gladly answers questions.

EDUCATION AND PSYCHOLOGY A Realistic View

Illinois State University was founded on the principle of training teachers; the Department of Education and Psychology was organized to provide the prospective teacher with his fundamental building blocks, education and psychology courses. At the undergraduate level, the training of a competent teacher is paramount, and a constant revision of courses provides the student with up-to-date material. When the student reaches graduate work, emphasis is placed upon his specialization within the school system, perhaps in the field of guidance, school administration, or school psychology. Research surveys conducted by the department aid neighboring school systems in curriculum improvement and reorganization. Valuable data is gained to give the student a realistic view of school affairs.

Mr. Vernon points out the basic concepts of General Psychology.

ENGLISH

From Past to Future Through Books

Dr. Gimmestad relates the aims of the English Department.

Books, transmitting the experience of men of the past to men of the present and future, are the means by which mankind advances. The study of one's native language opens the world of books and prepares one to make his contribution to the modern world. Through the study of English one not only makes available to himself the wealth of knowledge in virtually every field but also identifies himself with humanity—with its great thoughts, hopes, despairs, and moments of triumph. The student of English discovers himself in the continuity of human experience, satisfies himself with the diversity and fullness of the heritage which he has received, and enriches that heritage with his own personality. Because he thinks deeply, he lives fully.

"Yes," answers Dr. Horvay, "one must not only learn the language spoken in a country but also understand aspects of its culture."

Students acquire facility in speaking by listening to tapes.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES

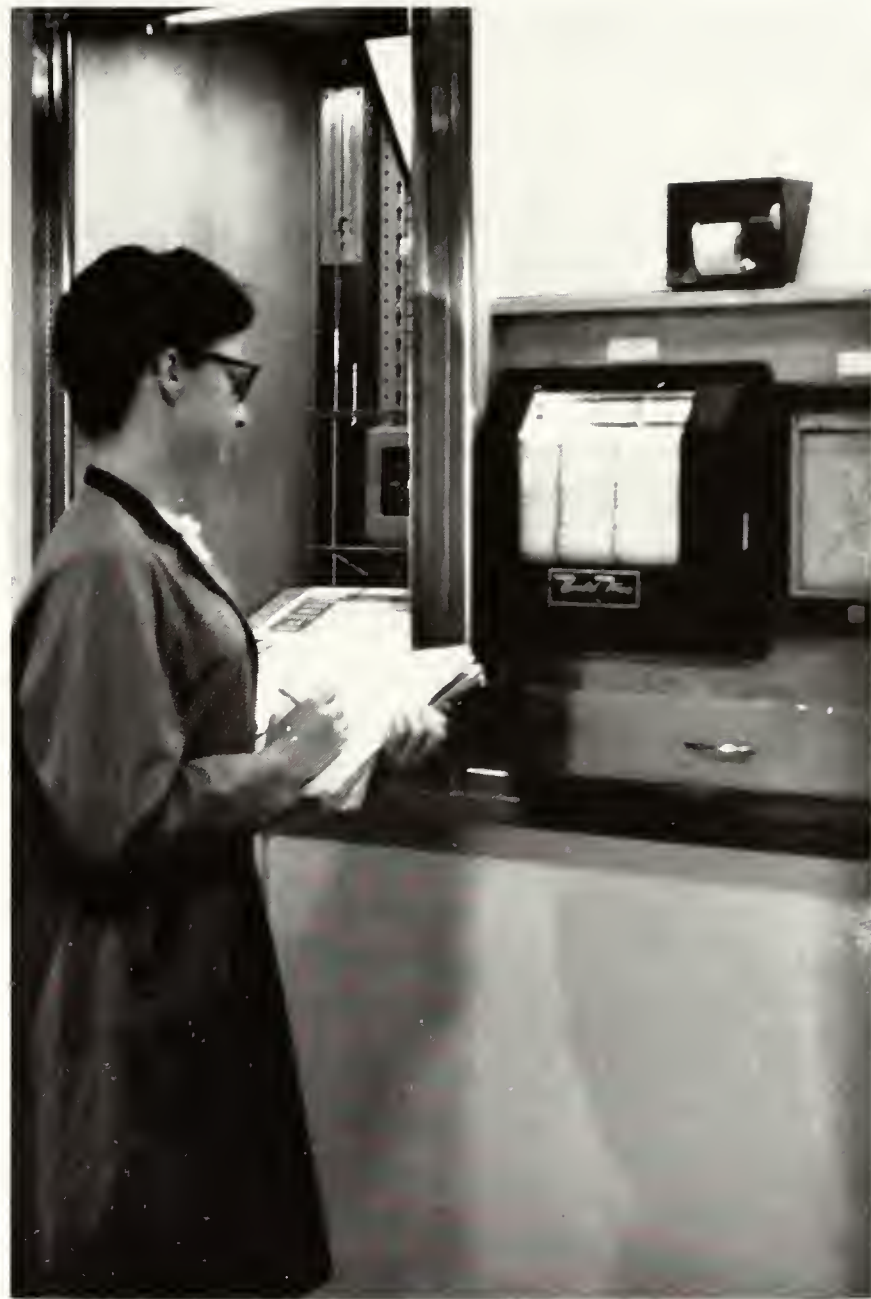

Communicate Culture

The key to understanding is communication, and the key to communication is language. With these two thoughts as its basic goal, the Foreign Languages Department augments the students' foundation in other tongues by including the study of the speech, art, customs, literature, and history of other nations. Thus, the language of the Russians, the Germans, the Spaniards, the Frenchmen, or the Italians becomes not merely an abstract thing but the means of communication with other human beings. Nor is the past forgotten, for the department also offers courses in the study of the Latin language. So with the combination of the cultures of the past and the various cultures of today, the foundation for fraternal understanding in the present is laid and is cemented for all future generations.

GEOGRAPHY

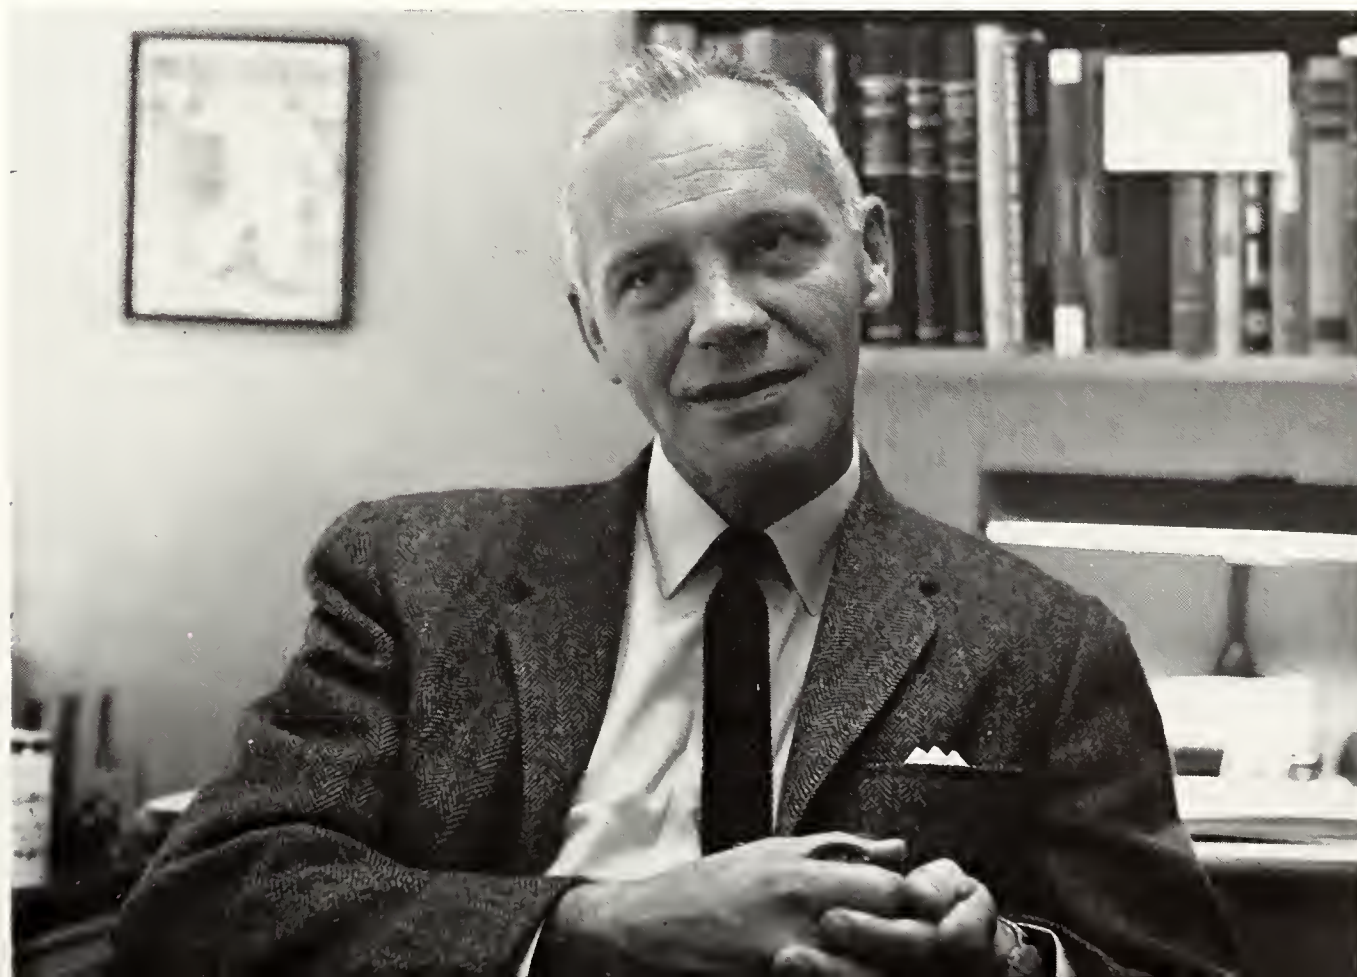

Views of our World

A knowledge of the physical aspects of the earth is essential to an understanding of the cultural developments which have evolved on our sphere. The major aim of the Geography Department is to acquaint students with both the physical and cultural patterns of the earth. A great deal of specialized equipment, valuable in instruction and in gathering data for further research, is utilized by the department. To this increasing list of equipment have been added instruments for recording sunshine effectiveness, wind velocity, and rainfall duration and intensity. These facilities, combined with the highly qualified staff of the department, are capable of providing ISU students with extensive knowledge of our world and its inhabitants.

Specialized equipment is essential for a study of climate.

MEN'S HEALTH AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Mental and Physical

Education is concerned not only with developing one's mind but also with bringing each individual to a level of health and fitness which permits him to perform efficiently and live happily. Within the Department of Health and Physical Education for Men, students are given the opportunities for self-expression through enjoyable recreational outlets, friendly social experiences, and development of grace and poise through physical activities. With the new facilities of Horton Fieldhouse and the surrounding playing fields, the department is able to expand its program which has as its major objective the development of responsible citizens. Through emphasis on mental health and physical fitness this goal is adequately achieved.

WOMEN'S HEALTH AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Expansion and Equipment for Learning

The extensive remodeling and addition to McCormick Gymnasium have considerably improved the severe space shortage of the Department of Health and Physical Education for Women. Provided are a swimming pool with underwater lighting and observation windows, a new student work room and lounge, two new multi-purpose areas, and new locker and dressing room facilities for both men and women. Reconstruction of McCormick Field this year provides sorely needed outdoor class space which is much safer for both participants and pedestrians than has been the case in the past. In late afternoon and evening hours, McCormick Gymnasium and Field are available to nearby Fell, Walker, Dunn-Barton, and Tall Hall students as well as faculty and other University personnel for their informal recreational and competitive needs.

HOME ECONOMICS

Practical Training with New Equipment

From the hum of the sewing machine to the aroma of well prepared food to the joyous laughter of children at play—all these are found within the Department of Home Economics. Working within the well equipped facilities of Turner Hall, students in the many areas of home economics are taught with the most modern equipment and techniques. A child development laboratory utilizing an observation booth with one-way glass gives students the opportunity to observe and work with young children. Graduate students may use small research kitchens, a play therapy area, a household equipment research laboratory, and a textile laboratory to complete their training. A student seminar room completes the plan of providing the student with extensive professional training and experience in home economics.

Dr. Porter, head of the Department of Industrial Arts, reviews his plan of work.

Careful adjustment is essential to precision.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

New Techniques to Fulfill the Challenge

The student is carefully instructed in the use of machinery.

The training given to high school students in the area of industrial arts reflects directly upon the kind of preparation that their teachers have had. By providing leadership in this state in the area of curriculum development, the Industrial Arts Department is faced with the responsibility of keeping their program up-to-date. New opportunities were made possible with the opening of Turner Hall. The department added modern equipment for power mechanics and for offset lithography in the field of graphic arts. Using new instructional techniques and instructional materials in the drafting room and the general shop, the department is meeting the challenge presented by the high schools to provide the best in industrial arts education.

As students gather around the library table, they begin to explore the world of books.

LIBRARY SCIENCE

The Use of Books to Reinforce Learning

Dr. Hertel is absorbed in reading one of many resource books.

Books—how does one begin to learn about them? One must read and understand them. Who is to help in this endeavor? The librarian—but the shortage of school librarians is a major area of concern in schools today. The Library Science Department serves the schools of Illinois in this need by providing extension courses, late evening courses, short three-week summer courses, and workshops in addition to a full minor program on campus. The Teaching Materials Center in Milner Library provides a demonstration collection of books and varied materials for use by students and instructors from every department. This collection serves as a laboratory for teachers in service to read and evaluate learning materials, both print and non-print.

MATHEMATICS

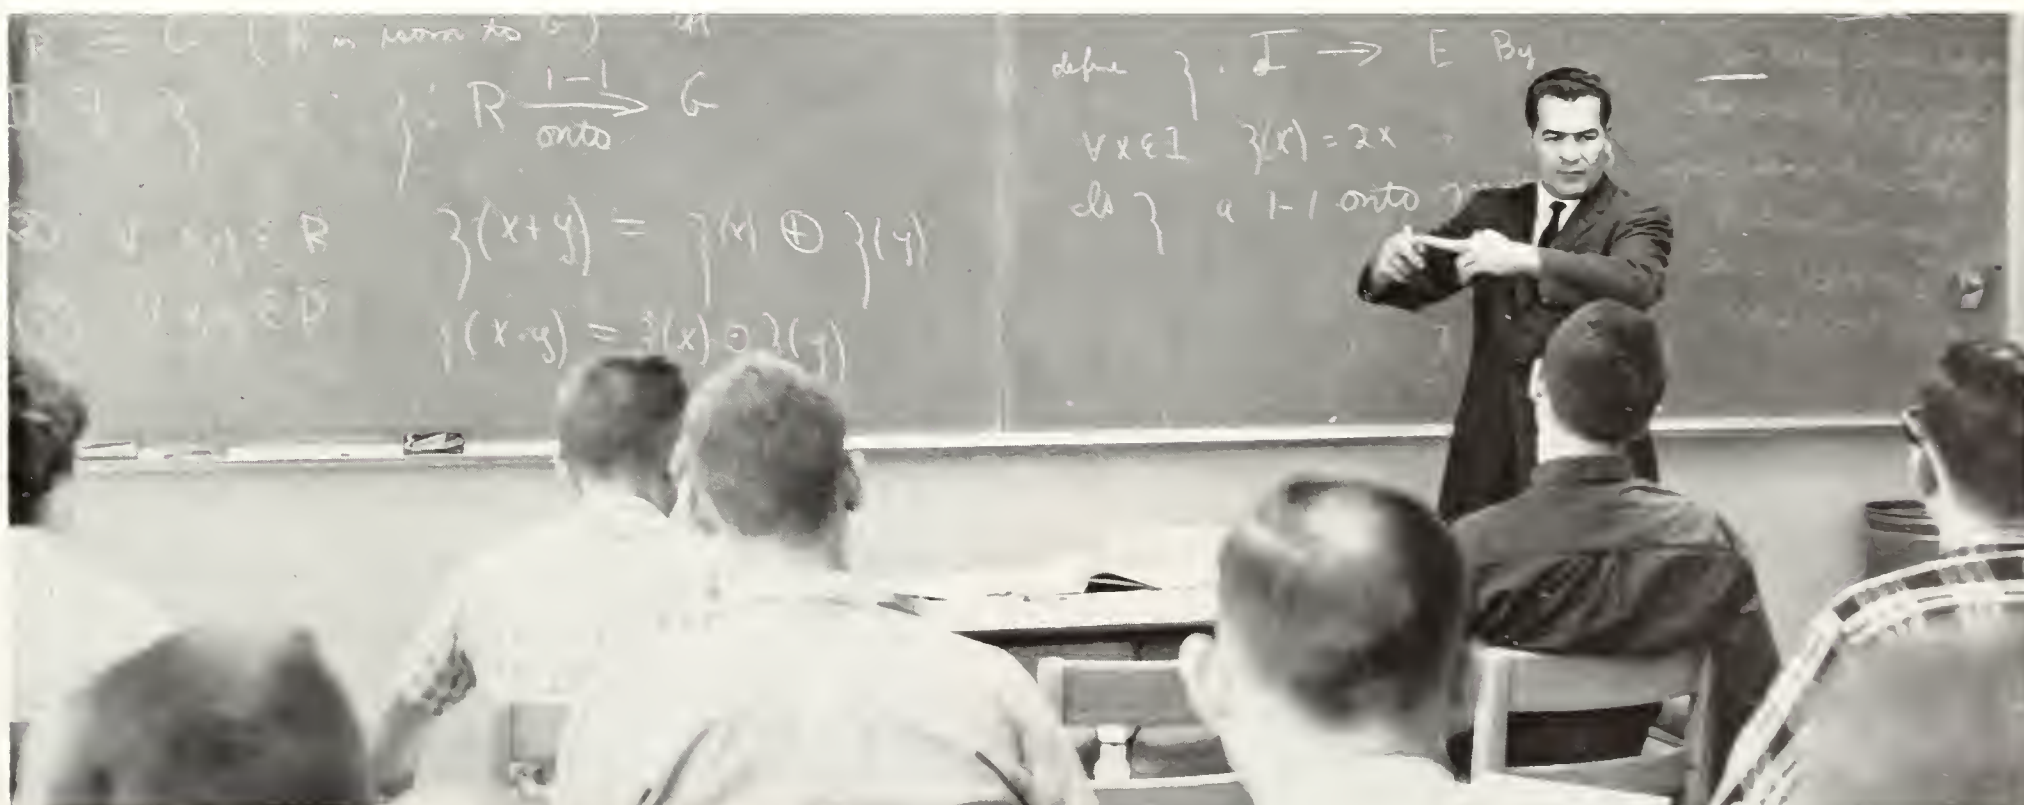

Theory in Practice

To instill in prospective teachers the ability to teach both traditional and modern insights into mathematical thought is the primary concern of the Mathematics Department. Fundamental techniques are explored and form the foundation upon which new methods and original ideas are based. The student advances from basic courses in algebra to advanced studies in numerical analysis, gaining skill in a variety of areas. An awareness of the dynamic nature of mathematics is strengthened by a curriculum which emphasizes both theory and application. The new stress on the role of mathematics in our culture is carefully considered in the philosophy of this department, and every decision is consistent with the demands of our changing society.

Dr. McCormick, head of the Mathematics Department, takes notes from text presenting recent trends in math.

Mr. Downing carefully diagrams and explains the fundamental concept of a 1:1, onto mapping in an advanced mathematics course.

The hands and fingers of a true musician must be skillful and well-coordinated.

MUSIC

Expressing Emotions

The sound of music! How empty our lives would be without it! Music expresses ideas and emotions through the elements of rhythm and harmony, transporting our spirit through endless mazes of imagination. Preliminary training in the history and theory of music prepares students for further study in applied music, both vocal and instrumental. Efforts are made to prepare the student for his future teaching world, a world in which he must not only teach the basic fundamentals of music but also inspire a love for this art which will enable his pupils to use it in a meaningful way. Endless hours spent in diligent practice are fully rewarded by the satisfying feeling of accomplishment gained from experiencing the beautiful sound of music. Transferring experience to beginners also yields dividends.

Dr. Rye, head of the Music Department, carefully explains his point.

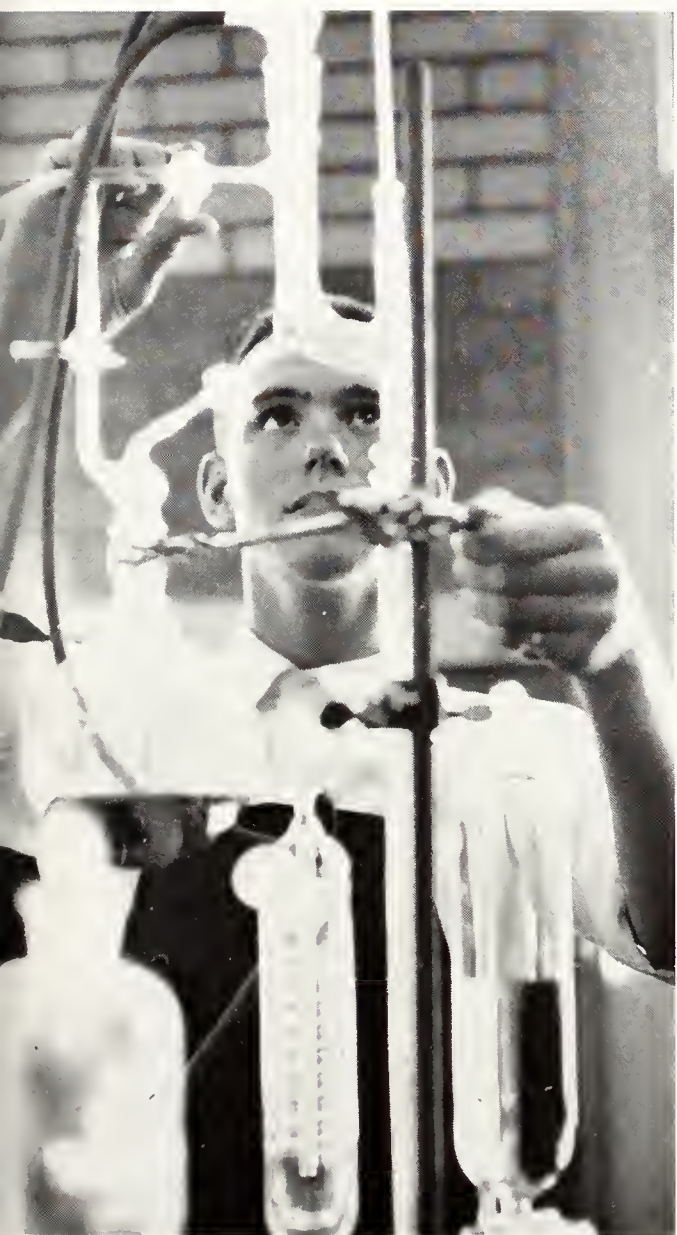

PHYSICAL SCIENCES

Research and Study

While the education of teachers is still the primary purpose of the Physical Sciences Department, increased emphasis is being placed on student research and graduate work—thus keeping with trends throughout the country. The department feels that additional training in the area of research and graduate study will provide for more inspired teachers and instructors. The student is placed in an atmosphere where much individual attention can be given him by the instructors, and accelerated courses offer him an opportunity to build upon his extensive background in the sciences. As the department looks forward to the new science building, the science students eagerly anticipate their coming role of teacher, especially in the separate teaching fields of chemistry and physics.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

Understand and Solve Problems of People

How to live with and understand the many peoples of the world, and understand and solve the problems arising from interactions of people—these are the kinds of questions the Social Science Department tries to answer when it plans its curriculum and activities. To understand and solve the problems men create for themselves involves the systematic and scientific study of the social sciences. This approach necessitates a constant revision of program and course offerings and adaptations to the changes taking place within our society. Research opportunities are opened by the University's acquisition of a data processing computer. The development of the "area study"—a comprehensive examination of the history, economics, and government of a certain area—offers the student a new, interesting type of learning situation.

Dr. Keeley grins broadly as he welcomes students.

Gestures do help to convey the main idea.

SPEECH

Effective Change

Change in the University is a reflection of our world. We live in a dynamic world where change is constant and dramatic. To view this world as static is to court disaster. Man must learn to adapt to his environment, and he must be capable of shaping it or become its victim. One instrument for adaptation and effecting change is speech; this has been true since the age of the Greeks when speech was employed as a means of obtaining justice. Today, when a major part of all communication involves either speaking or listening, man must be an effective oral communicator if he is to exist with change and thus survive. The Speech Department attempts to emphasize the significance of speech in this process of man's adaptation to changes in the modern world.

What should the student teacher do if the answer is not on the tip of his tongue?

STUDENT TEACHING

Gladly Would He Learn and Gladly Teach

It is a pleasure to know a student enjoys learning.

No college experience is approached with more ambivalent feelings than is student teaching. It gives meaning and fulfillment to almost four years of university preparation, but at the same time it presents the prospective teacher with the first real challenge to his personal skills and qualifications as a classroom instructor. Children are no longer the inanimate learners whom we read about in education and psychology texts; they are a class of thirty wiggling, inattentive individuals, each with his own readiness, his own interests, and his own needs. In the classroom our philosophy of education is no longer theory, but it must be practiced, revised, and then integrated into the practical classroom situation which daily confronts the teacher.

The student teacher plays a unique role in the classroom. He represents the authority figure to a group of students, yet at the same time he is a student himself, taking his apprenticeship under a more experienced and qualified instructor. He must learn to accept the criticism and suggestions of his critic teacher in the spirit of learning; however, he must also project to his students a sense of confidence and accomplishment in his own ability and intellectual understandings.

Intensive study is a must for the practice teacher. He finds himself, perhaps for the first time, questioning the theories, interpretations, and ideas presented to him in college courses. To answer a child's question, the student teacher must command a real understanding of material he has previously produced merely by rote.

An unanswered riddle awaits every practice teacher—how to set the stage for learning. A lesson plan may approach perfection and the presentation of materials may be flawless; but if the learner does not respond with intellectual curiosity, no learning has occurred.

Emphasizing learning . . .

The algae growing in agar leads to the learning process.

Textbooks can guide the new teacher in methods, but the ultimate decision rests with the individual student teacher. Only experience and careful analysis of those experiences will reveal to the student teacher the best methods he can employ to stimulate student interest. As suggested, this process is gradual and different for each beginning teacher. At this point, a student teacher must call upon a reserve of patience and determination to carry him over the initial adjustment to a classroom of students and the teaching situation.

It must not be forgotten that the student teacher himself has personal needs and goals. As he stands before a class, his mind may be preoccupied with tomorrow's lesson plan, yesterday's date, or today's conference with a critic. Still he will call upon a reserve of knowledge and ingenuity to lead the young learners toward knowledge and understandings.

GRADUATE STUDENTS

A Depth in Learning and Understanding

Graduate students identify rocks and their origin.

Having achieved a bachelor's degree after four long years of hard work, there are those who return to academic life to pursue a more extensive education in their major field of interest. Graduate students realize that working toward a master's or doctorate degree requires an innate ability for research and individual study. Thus, these are the years when extreme specialization takes place. Many graduate students carry the extra load of aiding a professor in their department as graduate assistants. In this role they are exposed once again to the various teaching activities—preparing and grading the tests, counseling students, and presenting some class material. Delving into the intricacies of their chosen field, graduate students find over and over that there is more to be learned than appears in the textbook.

Excellence, precision, and concentration are required at the graduate level.

FOREIGN STUDENTS To Spread Education Far and Wide

Thirty-one young people from other nations studied at ISU this year. The students were here to acquire new ideas and information that could be adapted for use in their countries. For example, in January two students from Thailand graduated with their master's degrees and then returned to help their country in several ways. Through acquaintances with students and teachers, these foreign students saw the American way of life; and we, in turn, learned the customs and thoughts of people throughout the world.

SENIOR

BOARD

With a mixture of apprehension and relief, the Senior Class prepared to face the unexplained in teaching. Most were leaving the sheltered existence of the student—an environment in which they had lived for sixteen years. The seniors were educated and ready to face an unknown world, a place which they had never been allowed to know. A giant question plagued them. "Where do I want to live and make a living?" Only time could answer this and they would have to know soon. But before they left their academic lives, there were loose ends to tie. Most important of these was graduation. The Senior Advisory Board, representing the Senior Class, planned the time and speaker for commencement, the class gift, as well as the other class activities. Finally the day of graduation arrived—a day of an ending and a beginning.

JUNIOR

BOARD

After two years of being looked upon as underclassmen, the juniors finally passed the half way mark and stepped forth to take a position of leadership. General education requirements were a thing of the past for most juniors as they began to specialize in their chosen field. Endless hours were spent reading, analyzing, and solving questions that often reached beyond comprehension. Accepting and fulfilling responsibilities to the school and community became perplexing, but in the confusion, the juniors began to think about goals and ambitions. They found themselves a vital part of ISU and ISU a part of them. Representative of the Junior Class was its Advisory Board which sponsored a first place Homecoming float and two informal dances. The proceeds from these helped to finance this year's Junior-Senior Prom and other activities.

SOPHOMORE ADVISORY BOARD

The sophomore has established himself in the university—in its academic, social, and extracurricular life. He now begins working toward completing the goals he has set and fulfilling the responsibilities he has accepted. His studies become more specialized and he takes a more active part in organizations and activities. The representative body of the class, the Advisory Board, made the class as a unit an integral and useful part of the University. The Board based decorations for the Sophomore Cotillion, a formal all-school dance, on various sites of interest in San Francisco. Each area of the Union corresponded to an area of the "Golden Gate City." A Campus Beautification Committee, organized at the end of last year by the Board, concentrated on making the campus more attractive and functional.

FRESHMAN

BOARD

The long awaited day has finally arrived—hopes, dreams, and plans which previously filled every waking moment have become reality at last . . . college has begun. Excitement mingled with fear envelop the uneasy freshman as he struggles desperately to adjust to a rigorous and entirely new life situation. This enthusiastic newcomer is caught up in the whirl of amazement and wonder within which revolve warm friendships, confusing experiences, and important decisions. The aura of wide-eyed expectancy prevails only temporarily, however, and soon the freshman develops a real sense of purpose and belonging. Aiding in the formation of this feeling is the Freshman Advisory Board which represents the entire class and unites the ideas of classmates into workable plans. This advisory body helps to make the first year of college memorable.

A Completed Task

Because of the 1964 Index our lives have changed. We learned to meet the responsibilities of publishing a yearbook and now feel the relief of completing the task. With the hope that all will enjoy the finished product, many hours of work and fun have ended.
